BOTH SIDES CLAIM STRIKE GAINS

RUDOLPH AGAINST BARNES

Braves Fight Hard to Down Giants in Double-Header

Braves Field, Sept. 24.—With the return of good weather, the Braves and Giants clashed in a double-header here this afternoon.

Rudolph and Barnes were the opposing pitchers in the opening clash.

FIRST GAME.

FIRST INNIN.

Giants—Burns doubled to left. Young hit to Pick and Burns was thrown out at third. Frisch singled to right, sending Young to third. Frisch took second on the thrown in. Doyle hit to Rudolph and Young was out at the plate. Rudolph to Boeckel to Gowdy, Frisch going to third. Frisch and Doyle worked a double steal, Frisch scoring, and Doyle taking third on Ford's bad throw. Fletcher was thrown out by Ford. ONE RUN.

Braves—Christy singled to centre. Pick hit in front of the plate and both runners were safe when Doyle muffed the throw. Powell popped to Doyle. Carroll singled to left, scoring Christy. Holke was thrown out by Barnes. Boeckel grounded out to Fletcher. ONE RUN.

Police Striker Saves Infant and Puts Out Fire

William P. Hogan of Atherton street, Jamaica Plain, formerly an officer at the Back Bay Police Station, and now on strike, rescued an infant at a fire at No. 46, Whitfield street. Hogan was passing through the street when he saw smoke coming from the first floor windows of the apartment house.

He rang in an alarm from Box 3354, then rushed back to the building to notify the occupants. He found a small infant in a blazing room, and carried it to a place of safety in an adjoining chamber.

Shouting an alarm which awoke the whole house, Hogan secured water from the kitchen and put out the blaze before the fire apparatus arrived.

JONES OPPOSES THE YANKEES

New York, Sept. 24.—Babe Ruth received another opportunity to get a home run, when the Red Sox and Yankees met in a double-header here today. The short right field stand at the Polo Grounds has been an easy mark for the Boston slugger, and he was expected to get at least one circuit drive during the twin matinee.

Sam Jones went to the box for the clan of Barrow, while Quinn was selected to do the hurling for the local outfit.

FIRST INNING.

Red Sox—Wilhoit singled to left. Vitt sacrificed, Quinn to Pipp. Lamar flied to Fewster. Ruth walked. Schang also walked, filling the bags. McInnis singled, scoring Wilhoit and Ruth. On an attempted double steal, Schang was out, Ruel to Quinn to Ruel. TWO RUNS.

Yankees—Vitt threw out Vick. Peck struck out. Jones tossed out Baker. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Red Sox—Shannon out, Peck to Pipp. Ruel threw out Scott. Jones walked. Wilhoit forced Jones, Peck to Pratt. NO RUNS.

BLACKMAIL ARREST IN QUINCY

Ware Man Alleged to Have Accused Dead Wife in Extorting Money From Victim

Accused of having blackmailed the former suitor of his dead wife, Fred Berge, fifty-four, a Ware business man, was arraigned in Quincy district court today on charges of larceny and extortion. Edward E. Beal of Goddard street, Quincy, a blacksmith, was the complainant.

Berge was held for trial October 4, bail being fixed at $500 on each of the two counts.

Beal, the complainant, told a strange story of persecution, culminating in an invasion of his room by Berge last night and the forcible taking of his gold watch and bankbook.

Mrs. Berge has been dead two years. The alleged intimacy which Berge is accused of using in bleeding Beal occurred while all parties concerned were living in Newfoundland.

Beal told the authorities that early in August Berge turned up at his residence on Goddard street, and coolly made himself at home. He stayed several days, threatening Beal with exposure of the alleged former intimacy between the blacksmith and his wife.

On August 14, according to Beal's sworn statement, he gave his persecutor $160 in cash and 200 shares of mining stock, worth $1,000. Berge disappeared, after having closed the incident in business-like fashion by giving Beal a "receipt in full."

Beal sought legal advice, and when the Ware business man showed up last night had him arrested. The arrest was not made, however, until Berge had compelled his alleged victim to open his trunk, and turn over a valuable gold watch and his bankbook, representing about $1,000, his life savings.

When Patrolman Whalen arrested Berge, Beal's bankbook was found concealed in his shoes, according to the policeman.

PLURALITY FOR LONG 42,469

Burrell's Victory Said to Be in Part Due to Mixup in Names

The latest returns from the State primaries show that Richard H. Long of Framingham defeated former Governor Eugene N. Foss by 42,469 votes for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Long secured the nomination, which permits him to run in opposition to Governor Calvin Coolidge, by a majority of 28,328 over combined vote of his three opponents.

Complete figures gave Long 53,627; Foss, 11,158; George F. Monahan, 9,719, and ex-Congressman Frederick S. Deitrick, 4,422.

BURRELL'S WIN SURPRISE.

The Republican nomination for treasurer was won by Representative Fred J. Burrell of Medford with 40,939 votes, occasioning the biggest surprise of the day. Burrell, whose last name differs in only one letter from that of the present incumbent, Charles L. Burrill, defeated Lieutenant-Colonel Frank S. Perkins, a Yankee Division veteran, by 7,000 votes. There were four other opponents.

Burrell's victory was said to have been due to the similarity of names, and the present treasurer announced today that he would contest his successor for renomination next year.

The complete figures on this contest were: Burrell, 40,939; Perkins, 33,808; Greenwood, 23,761; Gifford, 16,636; Pierce, 11,473, and Kerr, 5979.

Representative Fred P. Greenwood

May Jail Employers Who Coerce State Guards

Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens warned employers today that they are liable to a fine of $500 or imprisonment for six months for forcing the resignations of State Guardsmen under threat of discharge from employment.

The warning followed reports that the men were being urged by their employes to return to work and in some instances threatened with dismissal from their employment if they failed to do so.

"Such activity is illegal and punishable by imprisonment or fine," General Stevens declared. "I desire to call attention to the law in order to remind employers in question that they are laying themselves open to punishment if they continue in the practises charged against them.

"It is natural, of course, that with the scarcity of help they should wish their men to return as quickly as possible. But they should remember that the services of these men are required for the protection of the people in general and incidentally of their employers also. I do not consider that these employers are showing their patriotism when they seek to draw their men from this public service."

The law which was enacted in 1911 was amended to include "volunteer militia" which includes the State Guard. It is a drastic law making threat of discharge a misdemeanor, and reads:

"Any person who wilfully either deprives a member of the volunteer militia of his employment, dednies him employment, prevents his being employed by another, or obstructs or annoys him or his employer in respect of his trade, business or employment, because of such member's connection with the volunteer militia or because of his necessary absence from business in the performanc of his duty as such member, or whoever dissuades any person from enlisting in the volunteer militia by threat of injury to him in respect to his employment, trade or business or of other injury, in case he shall so enlist, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for the term not exceeding six months, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

WANDERING BOY TAKEN HOME BY HIS MOTHER

Clifford Cross, fifteen, of No. 15 Dutton street, Lowell, is back with his mother in Lowell. He was found wandering the streets of Boston early today by Inspectors Finn and Flaherty. He told the officers he was looking for his father. His mother was notified and took him back to Lowell. Mrs. Cross said her husband was working in Boston.

NORRIS LAUNCHES ATTACK ON BURLESON

Washington, Sept. 24.—"The Postmaster-General has done some things that seem to me sufficient grounds for impeachment," declared Senator Norris of Nebraska on the floor of the Senate this afternoon asking for an investigation of alleged interference with the Civil Service Commission by Postmaster-General Burleson.

GARY REFUSES TO COMMENT ON STRIKE

New York, Sept. 24.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, refused to break his silence on the strike today. Persons close to officials of the steel industry, however, claimed that the situation "is showing steady improvement."

ACQUITS SLAYER OF POLICE STRIKER

Abraham N. Karp, who deals in auto accessories at No. 308 Columbus avenue, was discharged in Municipal Court today on a manslaughter charge growing out of the shooting of Patrolman Richard Reemts September 11. Judge Burke found no cause for holding Karp, and his counsel, William McCartay, said the man deserved praise instead of censure.

Reemts, one of the striking patrolmen, was shot during the rioting, and died a few days later. It is alleged that he and another striker, Arthur Shea of Station 10, had just beaten two volunteer policemen, and were running away when a regular police sergeant called on Karp for help.

Shea, it is stated, will be arraigned October 2 on a charge of robbery.

1,000 ON STRIKE AT NAUMKEAG MILLS

All but 150 of the 1,150 textile workers at the Naumkeag Mills at Salem, struck today. J. Foster Smith, agent of the mills, said he believed the strike was in sympathy with the workers of the Danvers Bleachery in Peabody, who are on strike. John P. McConnell, business agent of the union, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, said the strike was to enforce demands for a 25 per cent increase in wages. With the 150 non-union loyal hands working, the mills' continued to operate today.

ARMY RETAIL STORES OPEN ON NEW PLAN

The army retail stores, with their mail order department, will open for sales directly to the individual household consumers tomorrow, according to a statement today from the Zone Supply Office. The former method of distributing surplus foodstuffs and supplies through the mails will no longer be necessary.

CANTON, O., STRIKERS VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK

MENTIONS STRIKE IN BOSTON

A. F. of L. Head Tells Senate Board It Has Forced Other Cities to Take Action

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The Boston police strike has forced municipal authorities throughout the United States to take steps for betterment of police wages and working conditions, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today told the District of Columbia Committee of the Senate.

Gompers appeared to oppose a resolution which would withhold the pay of the police of the district, while they were affiliated with the American Federation of Labor or any other labor body.

"The resolution is unnecessary, unjust and unwise," Gompers said. "The American Federation of Labor has no power to call a strike and never has called a strike."

Since the A. F. of L. authorized the affiliation of police unions there has been a great rush of policemen to unionize, Gompers said, and more unions had affiliated than he had ever seen organized in so short a period. He declared the reason for this was the "need of a remedial agency to fight for the policemen's rights."

Gompers declared that policemen have been treated "as vassals" heretofore and have "been oppressed and mistreated." No efforts have been made by the American Federation of

CLEVELAND RIOTERS STABBED

Steel Strike Mob Attacks Negroes—Foster Says 300,000 Workmen Have Quit

Both sides in the nation-wide steel strike today declared that they were making gains and that their forces had been materially strengthened.

The claim that there are now 300,000 steel workers on strike, with their ranks being constantly augmented, was made by William Z. Foster, secretary-treasurer of the national committee, in a telegram to Samuel Gompers at Washington.

From Chicago, Canton, O. and from Newcastle, Pa. came reports that men were returning to work in greatly increased numbers, and that the strikers were showing signs of weakening. A report from Canton said that nearly all of the 1,200 employes of the Canton Steel Company have voted to return to work Sunday.

In his telegram to President Gompers, Mr. Foster asserted that the Homestead district was "dead," and that the plants in the Pittsburgh district were being closed rapidly.

At Newcastle it was stated that American workmen of the Shenango and Newcastle plants of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company returned to work in increased numbers. At Chicago it was also stated that between 2,000 and 2,500 men were reported inside the mill of the Illinois Steel Company today, as compared to 1,500 yesterday.

In Cleveland, three negroes were Labor Leaders Determine to Extend "Sympathetic" Strike in Steel Districts

By International News Service.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 24.—With the strike situation in the Pittsburgh district practically deadlocked so far as extension of the tie-up here is concerned, labor leaders turned their attention to other methods to force the steel operators to deal with them.

Their chief weapon is the "sympathetic" strike. By effective use of this method they hope to bring the mill owners to terms. Already, according to directors of the strike in this district, the switchmen and yardmen who operate the cars which feed the mills are growing "restless in sympathy with the strikers."

"Our reports," said William Z. Foster, secretary of the strikers' organization, "show that yardmen and switchmen are getting restless. They are becoming incensed over the treatment accorded us in this district—suppression of free speech, 'Cossack' methods of oppression, arrest of union men and denial of the right of free assemblage.

"We have reports that the railroad workers in Youngstown and Cleveland already have refused to operate the cars which take raw products into the mills and bring out the finished material."

TODAY'S CONFERENCE.

The extension of the strike to these "sympathetic" industries was the principal topic before the meeting of the full national committee here today. John Fitzpatrick, chairman of the committee came here from Chicago to preside over it. He will go on to Washington tonight, it was stated, to appear before the Senatorial committee, which is to delve into the causes of the strike.

The strike heads also gave considerable attention today to their "grievances" in the Pittsburgh district which they assert consist of ill-treatment of strikers by "Cossacks" (State constabulary), denial of the right to meet, arrest and oppression of men merely because they are strikers, etc.

Against these allegations of the strike leaders, spokesmen for the operators charge foreign-born strikers with intimidating the wives and children of the loyal employes, threatening them with death and injury, burning their homes, etc.

The strike went into the third day today with the situation practically unchanged. In the districts outside of Pittsburgh the tieup of the industry seemed fairly complete. The great steel centres of Youngstown and Wheeling were paralyzed.

REPORT MORE AT WORK.

Pittsburgh and the dozen big mill towns immediately surrounding it continued to be the stronghold of opposition to the strike. It was even asserted by the operators that more men went to work today than on Monday.

The strikers denied this, but the fact remained that the wheels continued to turn in and around Pittsburgh with seeming regularity. Officials believed there was little prospect of trouble in the immediate Pittsburgh district. It is literally swarming with State constables, special police and ex-service men sworn in as deputies.

Three persons were injured in a small outburst of trouble near the Thirty-third street plants last night, but it was squelched and did not again break out. Further upstate, however, the situation was somewhat more alarming. Rioting at Farrell was renewed with one killed and several injured.

One Killed, Two Hurt When Troops Disperse Rioters at Farrell, Pa.

Farrell, Pa., Sept. 24.—Forty additional troopers of the Pennsylvania State constabulary arrived here during the night to reinforce the twenty-five already here in suppressing riots which already have caused three deaths and many injuries in the steel strike.

Today the streets were being patrolled. It is said that a house-to-house search will be made for weapons in the foreign quarters. One was killed and two injured in last night's rioting.

State troops charged into the crowds after being showered with bricks and bottles. It is said they fired first in the air to intimidate the mob.

Ten Men in Hospital as Result of the First Strike Clash in Chicago

By International News Service.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Ten men, non-striking workers, are in hospitals today, severely beaten in the first clash between striking steel workers and those who refused to join the strike at the Mark Manufacturing Company plant in Indiana Harbor last night.

The fight between 450 strikers and about fifty men who remained at work is the first serious disturbance to be reported in the Chicago district since the steel workers went on strike Monday.

The men were attacked with bricks and clubs, according to the police, as they were leaving the plant.

Indiana Harbor police responded to a riot call sent in by guards at the plant. The police dispersed the mob, but as they started back the patrol was stoned. The officers started after the men with drawn revolvers and claim that a member of the mob fired a shot at them. The police returned the fire and about twenty shots were exchanged, but no one was hit.

The general strike situation in the Chicago district remains practically unchanged today. Union leaders claim about 60,000 of the 80,000 or more steel workers on strike. Mill foremen and sueprintendents are agreed on these figures, while officials of the various mills refuse to discuss the situation.

12 Badly Wounded in Clash at Carnegie Plant at Youngstown

Youngstown, Ohio, Sept. 24.—Twelve men were injured, three seriously in rioting at the Ohio works of the Carnegie Steel Company and the Republic Iron and Steel Company mills. The injured men were all foreigners except one.

The mounted police were rushed by the mob and dragged from their horses but fought their way after being roughly handled. The arrival of ex-soldiers in uniform with rifles and fixed bayonets probably saved the policemen's lives.

The rioting was the first sign of violence in Youngstown and occurred when several hundred men gathered at the mill gates, and demanded they be paid, it being the Carnegie pay day in normal times.

Gary and Fitzpatrick Not to Face Each Other at Tomorrow's Hearing

Washington, Sept. 24.—Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation, and John Fitzpatrick, chairman of the national committee organizing the steel workers, will not face each other tomorrow when the Senate Committee on Education and Labor opens its investigation of the steel strike. Judge Gary last night telegraphed Senator Kenyon, chairman of the investigating committee, stating it would be inconvenient for him to appear tomorrow and requesting that his appearance be postponed until a week from today.

Senator Kenyon stated today that the request had been granted, at the same time announcing the receipt of a telegram from Fitzpatrick stating that he would be on hand tomorrow. This development robbed the investigation of what promised to be a dramatic feature. The fact that the recognized leaders of the steel industry and of steel labor were scheduled to face each other on the opening day of the inquiry, had aroused the keenest of interest in the proceedings.

W. B. Rubin, counsel for the steel strikers, announced today he would ask the Senate committee probing the steel strike to summon the Governor of Pennsylvania and other State officials to fix the responsibility for the actions of the State constabulary in firing on crowds of strikers and breaking up what he said were lawful meetings. He will ask that eyewitnesses to the rioting in the strike district be summoned.

Rubin said also he might question the right of United States Senator Lawrence C. Phipps of Colorado to sit with the committee. Phipps is a former vice-president and treasurer of the Carnegie Steel Company and a nephew of the late Henry Phipps. He is said to be one of the largest holders of steel stock in the country.

Three Men Stabbed in Cleveland When Negroes Are Mobbed

Cleveland, O., Sept. 24.—First serious trouble in the Cleveland steel strike came today when strikers attacked three negroes as they endeavored to enter the plant of the American Steel & Wire Company at Newburg. According to the police, two of the negroes were armed with knives, and in the melee that followed three men were stabbed, one seriously. Two of the negroes were badly beaten.

The negroes sought refuge in a street car, but the crowd followed it to the next stop, raining bricks and stones on its roof and through the windows. The police rescued the negroes.

Stanley Kritz, thirty, one of the men stabbed, may die, and James Hood, one of the negroes, is in a serious condition at a hospital as a result of the beating he received at the hands of the crowd.

Sixteen organizers of the United Mine Workers of America were today ordered to Pittsburgh by acting President John L. Lewis to assist in organizing the steel workers in that district. This action was taken in response to an appeal from the national committee in charge of the organization of the steel men. They will report to W. Z. Foster at Pittsburgh. Financial aid may also be voted at a meeting of the miners' international executive board today.

Police and Guardsmen Concentrated to Prevent Attack on Steel Mills

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 24.—An attack by striking steel workers, said to have been planned for early today against three big steel and iron plants at Lackawanna was prevented by heavy concentrations of policemen and State troopers. The strikers, it was said, planned to attack the mills of the Lackawanna Steel Company, the Donner Steel Company and the Rogers-Brown iron works.

Chief of Police Gilson of Lackawanna patrolled the streets with a riot squad of fifty men while fifty State troopers routed loiterers out of saloons and prevented bands of strikers from congregating.

The Buffalo police department promised aid if rioting broke out.

Further disorders during the morning caused the police guards in the mill districts to be doubled.

Patrolman Hack was severely beaten near the Otis plant when he endeavored to force a crowd to move on. When attacked the patrolman fired three shots, one of which took effect. Police reserves are searching for the victim. Nine arrests were made before noon as a result of the incipient riots.

Police fear further trouble this afternoon at the plant of the American Steel & Wire Company, when the men gather to be paid off.

AUTOIST APPEALS FROM DRUNKENNESS SENTENCE

Three months in the House of Correction for operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor was the penalty imposed on Gerald J. Connell, twenty-five, of Conant street, Roxbury, by Judge Hayden in Roxbury Court today. For being drink he was fined $10. Connell was arrested near Roxbury Crossing by State Guardsmen Monday night. He appealed.

Clothing Thieves Fined

Charged with larceny of goods valued at $222 from the Goldberg Clothing Company of East Boston, three men were arraigned today before Judge Brown of East Boston District Court. Ralph M. Dean and James J. Johnson of East Boston and Julius Cohen of Chelsea were found guilty and fined $25 each.

SENATE GETS PACKERS' REPORT

Profits Allowed by Hoover Are Called Too High by the Commission

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 24.—Disagreement between the Federal Trade Commission and the Food Administration over the profits allowed by Herbert C. Hoover to the large packers came to light today.

The Federal Trade Commission, in response to a Senate resolution, laid before the Senate its report on profits allowed by Hoover, which report was submitted to President Wilson. The letter of response from Hoover attacking the Federal Trade Commission was also made public. Both of these reports had previously been withheld from publication at the request of Hoover.

The report submitted to President Wilson by the Federal Trade Commission on June 28, 1918, said in part:

"The maximum profits for the five largest packers under the food administration regulations are unreasonably high. These rates of profits are estimated to be from two and one-quarter to three times as great as those earned in the pre-war years or 1912.

"The normal rate for the five chief packers should be seven per cent. on net worth, with one-half per cent. increased allowance for every ten per cent. in weight slaughtered, and one-half per cent. in decrease in rate for every ten per cent decrease in weight slaughtered; the profit allowed not to go above nine per cent. It is probable that this rule would result in about eight per cent., which is one per cent. more than their actual pre-war earnings.

"The maximum allowed the smaller packers should be 9 per cent., increasing on a sliding scale to eleven per cent., but without a decreasing scale."

Replying to the Federal Trade Commission's report, Mr. Hoover wrote to President Wilson as follows:

"We are no in disagreement as to the fact that the packers may earn too large profits under the regulations. We are in disagreement as to the method of establishing regulation and perhaps as to the actual percentage."

SHAW IS CHOSEN TO SUCCEED JENNEY

Latter, Elevated to Supreme Bench, Sworn in by Governor Coolidge

Governor Coolige administered the oath today to Judge Charles Francis Jenney of the Superior Court, who succeeds Judge William Caleb Loring resigned, as a judge o fthe Supreme Coirt.

Judge Jenney was twice named for the position, once in anticipation of the resignation and later, at his own request, following theresignation, so that there would be no question of its legality.

Governor Coolidge sent to the council the nomination of Judge Edward L. Shaw of Easthampton as a judge of Superior Court to take the place of Judge Jenney.

It was announced that the continuation of the Hourihan pardon hearing was postponed until next week.

Other nominations made by the Governor today were:

Frederick H. Kendall, Framingham, commission to consider the erection of a memorial in Porto Rico to the soldiers of the Sixth Mass. Regiment, under the resolves of 1896, vice Estabrook, deceased.

Wilfred B. Tyler, Malden, clerk first district court of eastern Middlesex, reappointment.

John F. Croston, Haverhill, medical examiner, fourth Essex district, reappointment.

Francis W. Anthony, Haverhill, associate medical examiner, fourth Essex district, reappointment.

Samuel Max Leveen, Nantucket, master in chancery, Nantucket County, reappointment.

PLAN TWO MEMORIALS TO AIRMAN OSTRIDGE

Friends of the late Charles L. Ostridge of Watertown, who was drowned at the Chatham Aviation Base, are collecting a fund for a memorial portrait to be presented to his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ostridge, of Irving street, Watertown. The class of '19 of Boston College is raising a fund also for a similar portrait to hang in College Hall. Young Ostridge, who served with the American forces overseas, was assigned to Chatham, after the signing of the armistice. Last June his plane overturned when he was making a flight. His body was not recovered.

BOSTON SCHOOLS NO LONGER AN ATTRACTION TO BEST TEACHERS

MORE PAY IN OTHER CITIES

Increased Enrolment Makes This Year's Problem More Acute

A greatly increased enrollment in the Boston schools, together with a shortage of teachers, was pointed out today as an additional reason for increasing the salaries of public school teachers.

Miss Frances G. Curtis, member of the Boston School Commitee, also declared that salaries must go up, and asserted that the sentiment of the committee was in favor of increases.

It was further stated that the best teachers no longer apply for positions in Boston, preferring to go to Springfield, Worcester and other cities.

Youths who left school during the war to take industrial positions are returning, according to Frank V. Thompson, superintendent of schools. One thousand of them have re-entered the high schools, and they are in all the elementary buildings of the city, but a serious shortage of teachers is to be expected unless Boston meets the salaries being paid in other cities.

TEACHERS GO ELSEWHEFE.

The best teachers in the State no longer come here, according to the superintendent. They are gonig to Springfield, Worcester and other smaller cities.

Until a few years ago the situation was reversed. This city could draw from anywhere in Massachusetts. A place in the Boston schools was the goal of all teachers. Now they look elsewhere far salaries that will enable them to live comfortably, according to the superintendent. Even teachers who have been in the local schools for years are growing restless under the strain of making their pay stretch over the mounting cost of living and are looking wistfully at the better positions in other places.

ALL POORLY PAID.

A young man or woman desiring to become a teacher must of course graduate from high school. Then follows a three-year normal course and from one to four years' practice teaching. After spending time and money equivalent to that required for any profession, the teacher of Boston is then read yto start at a salary of $696 a year—a wage less than that of any unskilled laborer. A raise of $96 a year is given until the maximum of $1,368 is reached.

A few executives in the schools receive more than $3,000. But ninety five per cent, of the teaching force are in the class receiving from $696 to $1,956. The latter figure is the maximum pay of a high school instructor.

Superintendent Thompson believes that a minimum wage of not less than $900 should be established. This is absolutely essential, he declares, if Boston's educational standards are to be maintained.

SOME PUPILS EARN MORE.

New York City revised the schedule of teachers' salaries, fixing the minimum at $1,000 and the maximum at $2,000. Data on this subject being gathered from the twenty leading cities of the United States so far indicates that Boston will be toward the bottom of the list.

Teachers in the continuation school where four hours' instruction a week is given boys and girls compelled to leave school when fourteen years old to take outside work recently learned that most of their pupils were earning more than they were.

The United Improvement Association has received a report from its committee on education favoring a raise for Boston teachers. Authority for the increase must come from the Legislature.

"SALARIES MUS TGO UP."

"The situation in Boston is such," said Miss Curtis, "that salaries in Boston must go up to counteract the increasing cost of living. This high cost of living falls particularly heavy on all those who are trying to live on the salaries of former years."

Miss Curtis told how the Board of Superintendents had no facts, and praised the generosity of Judge Michael H. Sullivan, Chairman of the Board, and other members, for giving much time to the furtherance of the project. She said the matter was now being worked out by the committee and would be presented to the Legislature. All this, according to Miss Curtis, was done in the face of strong opposition from Mayor Peters and the Corporation Counsel.

PRODIGY, 13, AND MAN OF 58 SEEKING HONORS AT HARVARD

Jacob Shankman (left), thirteen-year-old Harvard prodigy, who besides speaking five languages is attending a rabbinical school. He was born in Chelseaand since his childhood has surprised his teachers by his rapid mental development. Ulysses Grant Houston who, at fifty-eight, enters Harvard to study Greek and incidentally add to a fund of kowled ge which has earned him honors in five or six other universities in the United States.

With its oldest pupil fifty-eight years old and its youngest only thirteen, Harvard University begins its 1919 Fall session today in striking contrast to conditions prevailing a year ago when the probability of an armistice was apparently remote and students went about their duties in war attire.

Jacob Shankman of Chelsea, a wistful boy in "knickers," is the youngest student this year and becomes one of the 400 pupils in the freshman class.

Ulysses Grant Houston, nearing his fifty-ninth year, a native of Manhattan, Kansas, and a world traveler and scholar, is the oldest.

Young Shankman's presence in the college as an intellectual prodigy has caused as much of a sensation as did Boris Sidis or Adolphus Berle, son of Dr. A. A. Berle, several years ago.

At the Wiliams grammar school in Chelsea he averaged 96 and 97 per cent., leading his sections.

When at the Chelsea High School the teachers were amazed with his work, and he was one of two pupils on the honor roll, the other being a girl.

In his first year at the high school he took bookkeeping in addition to his regular preparatory course. During one of his grammar school years he took three courses in one. Although starting late this Summer at the Huntington School, he completed the work in one month.

Born in Chelsea in February, 1905, he has proved himself a mental marvel.

SPEAKS 5 LANGUAGES.

In addition to his academic studies, he is attending the Hebrew Rabbinical College in Boston. He has also ambitions to become a doctor, but before that to be mascot and coxswain.

He is a very little fellow and does not weigh any more than eighty-five pounds. He speaks Hebrew, Yiddish, French, German and Latin. His father is Isaac Shankman, president of the Red Mogein Dovid of New England, and one of the leading Jewish communal workers of Boston.

Mr. Houston enters Harvard to take up an advanced course in Greek. He intends later to study at the University of Athens, Greece. He has come to Harvard, he told an American reporter, to retrieve what he had lost and to correct the mistake he had made when he devoted himself to scientific instead of classical studies. After traveling round the world several times, spending much time in Asia in research work, the Nestor student says he has discovered that he is well enough educated to realize just how much he lacks.

DIVIDES SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

His application for admission to the Cambridge High School as an elementary Latin scholar has brought Mr. Houston so far nothing more than the knowledge that he is the subject of a vigorous battle between the members of the Cambridge School Committee. Several members of the committee believe that a class room filled with children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen would be no place for a man as mature as Mr. Houston. A special committee of the Cambridge School Committee has been appointed to decide the issue.

"I would like to take a first-year Latin course in the Cambridge High School concurrently with my post-graduate course in Greek at Harvard," he said. "The reason I applied for admission to the Latin class was because I could not see my way to pay the high fees a tutor demands. It is supported by the public through taxation, so why should a man be barred from it because of his age?"

Professor Clifford H. Moore, chairman of the Department of Classics at Harvard, is one of the many educators he is acquainted with. He holds degrees from colleges all over the United States. He obtained the degree of Bachellor of Science at the State Agricultural College of Manhattan, Kansas, where his home is. At Bethany College, West Virginia, he received the degree of Master of Arts and other honors have come to him from the University of Pennsylvania, University of Michigan, Dropsie's College in Philadelphia, Amherst and many others. He has won several scholarships and prizes for Hebrew.

GANGSTERS USE AUTO TO DECOY VICTIMS

Warwick, R. I., Robberies Lead Police to Institute Wide Roundup

Providence, Sept. 24.—Following the confessions of five men charged with a holdup at Warwick, R. I., authorities today began a roundup of gangsters suspected of using automobiles to decoy victims into the country and rob them. The confessions indicate the existence of a well-defined organization along this line, according to the police.

The men held up in Warwick were Wright Copeland and James F. Elgo, both in the naval service. They were picked up at different times by the five men in the auto and asked to take a ride. When the machine had been driven to a dark stretch of country road, the victims were threatened with weapons and relieved of their cash.

The five men were shortly afterward arrested and made written confessions, according to the police.

RUNAWAY HORSE FALLS AFTER HURTING CHILDREN

A slippery pavement causing the fall of a runaway horse saved the lives of two children. Bolting down Lawrence avenue, Roxbury, the horse and vehicle crashed in the middle of the roadway.

Two were caught in the wheels and were being drawn against a curb when the horse fell. The children—Isador Freedman, aged five, of No. 25 Normandy street, and Leonard Kellman, aged five, of No. 7 Intervale street—sustained numerous bruises and abrasions. The Freedman boy also suffered a fracture of the right arm.

WOMAN'S POST GOES OVER TOP WITH 800 MEMBERS

The New England Woman's Post of the American Legion has gone over the top in the big paid-up membership drive. Their assigned quota is 800.

The women's commander, Mrs. Daisy M. Erd, formerly chief yeoman (F) of the Charlestown Navy Yard, brought the names of 850 paid-up members to the State headquarters, No. 84 State street, yesterday, and that number was recorded on the books by State Secretary Leo A. Spillane.

EX-COUNCILLOR KILLED BY FALL DOWN SHAFT

Homer H. Southwick, aged sixty-seven, of No. 102 Whitman street, Malden, a night watchman employed by the Boston Elevated, was instantly kiled in a fall in an elevator well at the company building, No. 101 Milk street.

He has a brother, Nelson I. Southwick, living at No. 42 Ford street, South Wellington. Nelson was widely known in Republican politics some years ago, and at one time served in the Boston City Council. Mr. Southwick is survived by five children. His wife died six years ago.

NORTH ADAMS WOMAN DIES OF BLOOD POISON

North Adams, Sept. 24—Blood poisoning, resulting from a cut on her toe received several weeks ago, resulted in the death at the North Adams Hospital of Mrs. Mary Angland of Phoenix street. She was fifty-one years of age and is survived by one daughter.

STANDARD OIL TANKER BADLY BATTERED

Vessel Reaches Baltimore After Hard Battle in Gulf Storm

Baltimore, Sept. 24.—Overdue and in a battered and leaky condition as the result of her encounter with the hurricane which swept the Gulf of Mexico and the South Atlantic coast last week, the Standard Oil Company's tanker A. C. Bedford, flagship of a fleet bound from Buenos Aires, via Tampico, for Baltimore, has arrived at this port. The ship is in command of Captain Taylor L. Harrison and the damage to vessel and cargo is estimated at $500,000.

Eight lifeboats were lost, the bridge and midship deck were torn down and the bottom of the ship was damaged. When the vessel sprung a leak 5,000 tons of oil were lost. The captain was slightly injured when a boat crashed into the side of the cabin.

The A. C. Bedford battled with the gale for more than twenty-four hours before she succeeded in pounding her way out of the danger zone.

FOREIGN WOOL MEN COMING TO BOSTON

Delegates from Great Britain and the Continent to the World's Cotton Conference to be held at New Orleans in October are visiting Boston tomorrow and Friday. These delegates represent not only the cotton industry but transportation, warehousing, banking, merchanting, shipping, and research.

There are about eighty men in the delegation. They will visit some of the industrial plants and inspect the waterfront, and will be tendered a luncheon during their stay here. It is probable that they will visit New Bedford and other textile centres. Their headquarters is at the Copley-Plaza. A reception committee of the Arkwright Club will entertain them.

STEEL HEADS IGNORE CONFERENCE REQUEST

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 24—The policy of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation officials in regard to the request of both the representatives of thee Bethlehem workers and the National committee on organization of iron and steel workers for a conference, is evidently to ignore completely the proposal. Not a word, one way or the other, has come from the corporation officials.

SOLD JAMAICA GINGER; WALTHAM MAN FINED

Judge Abbott of the Waltham Police Court, while not willing to rule that Jamaica ginger is an intoxicating beverage, found Stephen Zanco, a fruit store proprietor of Moody street, Waltham, guilty of keeping a liquor nuisance, and fined him $75. It was charged that Zanco sold several bottles of "jakey" to men known to the Waltham police as habitual drunkards.

U. S. SHIPPING BOARD RECRUITERS GO SOUTH

The transfer of the United States Shipping Board recruiting service from Boston was completed when the U. S. S. Meade sailed for Newport News where they intend to make their new headquarters.

Saturday the steamer Sturgeon left Boston while repairs were being made on the Meade.

ITALIANS PUT FIUME BLAME ON WILSON

Insist That President Is Blocking Satisfactory Settlement of Adriatic Problem

Paris, Sept. 24.—At Italian peace headquarters here the situation in Italy is frankly described as serious. Though it is asserted the Nitti government holds the whip hand, no doubt is left that the whole country is opposed to the ministry's dilatory policy and is backing Gabriele d'Annunzio to the end.

Italian officials took pains to emphasize in conversation with American newspaper men that, in their opinion a large share of the responsibility for possible grave events in Italy will rest with President Wilson, for the story continues to be spread across the length and breadth of Italy that he alone is blocking a settlement of the Fiume problem that would be satisfactory to the Italians.

France and Britain, it is learned, intend taking no further active part in the Fiume matter for the present. They will contradict neither President Wilson nor Italy. Nor will they back either party of the contraversy, but will simply let the affair run its natural course.

This might mean that the Fiume question is not to be settled at all but will remain a sore spot on the Adriatic coast and a permanent danger of inciting a fresh Balkan upheaval.

Italians in high position do not conceal their hearty sympathy with D'Annunzio and his procedure. Indeed, the poet-soldier's battle cry, "Fiume or death," is frequently and enthusiastically repeated.

D'Annunzio's latest effusion that has been allowed to escape the strict vigilance of the military censorship is this:

"If King Victor Emmanuel himself were to call personally here, the gates of Fiume would not be opened to him unless he first declared himself King of Fiume."

America's attitude in the Fiume tangle is causing lively speculation throughout Italy. Arguments are spread to the effect that the American people do not back up President Wilson, and that no civilized people would countenance even the suggestion of a boycott of Italy. That country needs America's help, and needs it sorely, in every field of national life.

It has just been learned here that a month ago American banking interests that were engaged in negotiations with the Italian government with regard to a loan of $3,000,000,000, suddenly stopped the pourparlers owing to an alleged "tip" from Washington that nothing be done until the Italian political situation had cleared up.

President Is Personally Handling U. S. Interests in Fiume Entanglement

Washington, Sept. 24.—President Wilson personally is handling the American interests in the Fiume situation, it is stated at the State Department.

The American peace delegation at Paris practically is taking no hand in the matter. It has received the plan of Premier Nitti of Italy to give Fiume to Italy and neutralize a strip of the Hinterland to appease the Jugo-lavs, but its action merely was to forward it to the President, officials declared. His discretion will govern further steps.

Excerpts from the Italian Socialist paper Avanti cabled to this country declare that Italy knew last July that D'Annunzio was planning his Fiume coup. The paper also states that it was made in "collaboration with the high command of the Italian army," that the plan was laid before Signor Nitti and that he affirmed that the Allies would accept the "fait accompli."

MAKES PATHETIC PLEA TO FIND LOST FATHER

Lawrence, Sept. 24.—A little girl in Biddeford, Me., sent the following pathetic appeal to the local police asking them to locate her father.

The letter was addressed to "Chief of the Lawrence police department," and read as follows:

"Biddeford, Me., Sept. 22. Dear Sincerely: Will you please tell me if you know a man is name is Joseph Bill he live in Lawrence he gone they make 11 years. I don't are anything about him in 4 year somebody told me he work in ice company. Somebody told me he died and will you please look for him for me. That make 7 year I dont see my father and I will like to see him. I have only 14 years olds and I dont have any sister or brother I feel lonesome. Will you look for him for me. Address Anna Bill 34 St Mary St Biddeford Me."

JEWS AT PINSK, POLAND, REPORTED AS STARVING

New York, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Pinsk, Poland, which was reported the scene of a bloody pogrom that stirred the Jews of every country in the world, is today a city of starvation and fear, according to a communication just received by the American Jewish Relief Committee from Dr. Boris Bogen, executive drector for Poland of the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers.

About 18,000 Jews in Pinsk are absolutely destitute, Dr. Bogen reports. Practically no food can be bought in the open market. Charity is administered picturesquely under military observation, and soldiers attend all relief meetings.

Libby's Son Administrator

Herbert A. Libby of Somerville has been appointed as administrator of the estate of his father, George H. Libby of Somerville. The estate is valued at $11,900.

Prominent Jurist in Wedding Mystery Resigns Office

New York, Sept. 24.—Who is "Joseph Lane"? This is a mystery which is puzzling the entire judiciary of the State of New Jersey. Back of it is a story, the nature of which bids fair to occupy the attention of the authorities of two States.

On January 30, of this year, Merritt Lane, then Vice-Chancellor Lane, the youngest, and considered the most brilliant man who ever sat as Vice-Chancellor of New Jersey, married Geraldine Garrison-Kerr.

She was a daughter of Supreme Court Justice Garrison, of New Jersey, and a niece of Lindley M. Garrison, former Secretary of War.

For some strange reason, Chancellor Lane kept the news of this event, his second marriage, from becoming public. The public only learned of it about six months later.

MYSTERY WOMAN IN COURT.

On April 4 of this year some person giving the name of Joseph Lane applied for a license to marry one Grace Herold in Stamford, Ct. This marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Clarence Hill Frank. The man who married Grace Herold gave as the names of his father and mother names identical with those of Vice-Chancellor Lane's father and mother.

About the first of June of this year a Newark newspaper published briefly the first account of Chancellor Lane's marriage to Mrs. Garrison-Kerr.

Within a day or two a mysterious woman walked into the Court of Chancery where he was sitting in the trial of a case. He adjourned court immediately and went into his private chambers with the woman.

That was the end of the career of Merritt Lane, or, as he was known earlier in life, Joseph Merritt Lane, as the all-important Vice-Chancellor of New Jersey. After his talk with the strange visitor, he never again sat on the bench as Vice-Chancellor.

LANE DENIES WEDDING.

He resigned the next day, June 4, 1919, to the amazement of every lawyer in New Jersey, for the Vice-Chancellorship is the secret ambition of every able attorney at the New Jersey Bar.

Since that time the question that has been bandied about from one end of New Jersey to the other is, "Who is Joseph Lane?"

The American having after a long search located the Rev. Dr. Frank, who married "Joseph Lane" and obtained a copy of the marriage certificate issued in Connecticut, sent representatives to see the former Vice-Chancellor.

He was asked to make some statement that might help to solve the great mystery of "Joseph Lane."

Chancellor Lane, of course, stated that it was not he who had been married by the Rev. Dr. Frank.

MUTE ON HORSEWHIP STORY.

The reporter said:

"What have you to say to the story current in legal circles to the effect that on June 3 or 4, after a newspaper article told of your secret marriage to Mrs. Kerr, the daughter of Supreme Court Justice Charles G. Garrison and niece of former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison, a strange woman appeared in your court?

"The report has it that she summoned you from the bench and that shortly afterward a commotion was heard in your court offices and that a horsewhip was taken from the woman?"

Mr. Lane answered:

"I will not discuss that report, one way or another."

Lane, who had been married when twenty-one years old, just after his admission to the bar of New Jersey, was divorced two years ago. Prior to that he and the first Mrs. Lane had been separated for a period of years. She obtained a divorce in Reno and he received a telegraphic communication to that effect shortly thereafter. Two children were born of the first marriage.

FAIRNESS DEATH TO STRIFE, SAYS MANUFACTURER

Meeting Wage Needs Secret of 37 Years' Immunity from Labor Trouble

New York, Sept. 24.—Employ only men who can "talk United States," treat employes fairly, anticipating needs of wage increases; ignore paid agitators.

These are the rules by which Theodore P. Brown, president of the Simplex Player Action Co. of Worcester, Mass., explained at the Hotel Belmont his immunity from strikes during thirty-seven years of manufacturing. He said:

WILLING TO MEET MEN.

"There are 700 men in our employ, quite a number of them union men. Ours is an open shop. I have never had any concerted demands for a raise. The few individual requests have always been easily adjusted. But I usually meet the situation in advance.

"Though I have never been called upon to do so, I always would be willing to meet any union men or delegation of men in my shop for a fair discussion of working conditions. But I most certainly would never meet any union man outside of my employ. I would never talk with paid agitators, whose purpose is only to disrupt, who organize the ignorant only to disorganize the industry and prosperity of the country.

"Three years ago I told my superintendents not to hire another man who couldn't talk United States and on December 12 last I instructed them to discharge every alien in our employ. I believe in confining industries, wherever possible, to the citizens of this country. Employ the voters, those who have a real interest in the country and therefore an interest in any business that helps this country.

FRIEND OF LABOR.

"My solution is, in a way, a representation for labor, but not such a representation as demanded by William Z. Foster, secretary of the National organizing committee for iron and steel workers.

"I would suggest that in each trade or industry where differences arise there be held yearly a state convention. This convention, having representatives from all concerned, would discuss conditions and define terms upon which labor and capital could best work and produce together, setting a wage scale in accordance with the then cost of living, that would automatically rise or drop with living cost changes."

HARVARD FUND WORKERS TO BE BANQUET GUESTS

The Boston Committee of the Harvard Endowment Fund will give a dinner next Monday evening at the Harvard Club of Boston to about 300 men who are taking an active part in the movement to raise $15,250,000 for the university across the Charles.

The company will include the members of the Harvard Corporation and the Board of Overseers, the deans of the various departments of the university, the chairmen of several of the local committees, and a number of men, not graduates of Harvard, who are interested in the project.

ISSUE IS PEACE OR WAR, SAYS PRESIDENT

Failure to Ratify Treaty Will Make U. S. Germany's Ally, He Asserts

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

On Board President Wilson's Special Train enroute to Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 24.—With a declaration of war on his lips and a demand that the Senate shall accept the issue of ratification of the treaty of Versailles as a guarantee of peace, or its rejection as a declaration that war must continue, President Wilson moved eastward today.

The President has decided that the issue has been raised by his opponents. Last night in the Tabernacle of the Mormon Church, Mr. Wilson explained his position. In effect he said:

1—Any rejection of this treaty leaves the United States as the ally of Germany.

2—Amendments to this treaty, which makes necessary resubmission to any signatory power, including Germany, defeat the objects of the war.

3—Opponents of the treaty must consider whether their "benevolent" stand makes for reconsideration, without their believing that this is a fact or whether the advocates of "amendments" shall be able to say to the world that the United States is not to be a party to the treaty.

The President was extremely bitter last night. While he did not make any reference to the issue of the campaign to come, he made it plain that "so long as I live" I will accept the issue that the "bleeding heart of the world depends upon America."

The President was very much delighted by the events of last night. In the heart of Mormonism, he cited statements of the leaders of church which apparently audience accepted as a [illegible] of the senior Senator of [illegible] State. Yet he did not criticize Mr. Smoot, neither did he criticize Senator Borah. In the audience in front of President Wilson last night there were more friends of Senator Borah than of either Senator from the State of Utah. They love Borah in Utah.

The President is going to carry the war straight home to the Senators who now are opposing him on political lines. He said last night that he could not understand their position.

The President today declared emphatically "Eighty per cent. of the American people want this treaty ratified."

THREATEN VIOLENCE AT NEW BEDFORD PLANT

New Bedford, Sept. 24.—Threats of violence sent a large part of the police force to the new plant of the National Spun Silk Company, where fifty laborers are out on strike. The strikers demand a raise in pay from fifty to sixty cents an hour. No real outbreak has developed so far, but the plant is surrounded by an extra guard of police.

Milford Couple Wed

Milford, Sept. 24.—Frederick Binks and Miss Mabel Tempest, widely known Milford young people, were married in Methodist Church by the Rev. Dr. T. O. Watkins of Needham Heights, assisted by the Rev. F. T. Pomeroy of Milford.

BOSTON GIRLS FEMININE AS EVER

London Preacher's Talk of Coarsened Manners Doesn't Apply Over Here

Are Boston women unsexed? Have they become "coarsened in their manners" by doing men's work during the war? Is their language "awful," and do they "surpass men in vulgarity?"

The women of England are guilty of all these charges according to Rev. F. B. Meyer of London, who has recently been preaching a series of sermons on the subject. But Boston girls—never! Persons who are in a position to know deny emphatically that the war has in any way caused the women of this city to deteriorate in character or manners.

This is what Rev. Mr. Meyer has to say:

WHAT MEYER SAID.

"I do not fear a food shortage or labor troubles. But I do fear the consequences of a lowering of women's modesty. The country is in real danger. The present fashions show a total disregard for everything we have previously looked on as noble in womanhood. Nor is it only in dress that women show a marked deterioration. They have become coarsened in their manners by association with men workers. The language of the girls in the subways and the omnibuses is becoming awful. They have not only adopted the manners and language of men, but have surpassed men in vulgarity. It seems that the women have developed among themselves a third sex, which is neither masculine nor feminine. It is a compound of the worst elements of both."

According to the Boston verdict, especially in the opinion of employment managers of large department stores, who have supervision over thousands of girl workers, the women of this city rise superior to any such charges. They have proved themselves able to do a man's work, without losing any of that feminine quality which creates an atmosphere in the shop or workroom as well as in the home.

BOSTON EXPERT OPINIONS.

Earle Powers, employment manager for Jordan Marsh Company, said:

"The London clergyman's statements certainly do not apply to Boston girls. The war has shown them that they could do a man's work, but they have not lost any of the feminine qualities that they ever had. It is true that they are doing kinds of work in our establishment that it was never before dreamed they could do, but they are doing it well and are just as womanly as before. Women today are running elevators, working in our receiving rooms (although not, of course, opening cases or doing porter's work), acting as furniture 'salesmen,' and as clerks in the men's furnishing department. These are just a few of the lines which have been opened to them which were formerly filled entirely by men. But the result has been wholly satisfactory, and I cannot see that either their character or their manners have suffered in the least by the change."

SEGREGATED IN FACTORIES.

C. F. Worthen, employment manager for Gray & Davis of Cambridge, a concern which, during the war, was engaged in the manufacture of munitions, said:

"There is no appreciable difference caused by the war. It is possible that in some cases doing men's work has caused a little bit of the 'polish' to be rubbed off, but the girls are certainly not coarsened, nor are their manners vulgar. In our plant the girls did not associate with the men workers; they were in their own departments, as they are now. The opinions quoted from London would be certainly unjust if applied to girls here."

WILSON SUGGESTS R. R. MEN FOR CONFERENCE

Washington, Sept. 24—To provide the big railroad unions with representation at the White House industrial conference on October 6, President Wilson, through Walker D. Hines, director-general of railroads, has suggested that four delegates from the railroad brotherhoods be added to the fifteen representatives of labor named by Samuel Gompers.

SALESMANSHIP COURSE OFFERED SERVICE MEN

A course in practical salesmanship is now offered demobilized service men at the K. of C. Free Evening School, 294 Berkeley street. John J. Morgan, president of the John J. Morgan Advertising Company, directs the course. The class meets Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 7:30 to 9:30.

DE VALERA TELLS OF IRELAND'S TRADE STRUGGLE

INDUSTRIES DESTROYED AS FAST AS THEY GREW

DESTRUCTION OF IRELAND'S COMMERCE

By EAMON DE VALERA,

President of the Irish Republic.

My object in these articles is to give Americans who wish to come to calm judgment on the question between Ireland and England cold facts on which to base it.

Eamon De Valera.

Of all the misrepresentation of Ireland's position which England has got the world to accept as a truth there is scarcely any so universal as that "Ireland's grievances are purely sentimental." I am not one to subscribe to any minimizing of the reality of grievances of the spirit, but any reader of the plain narrative of the successive acts by which the Irish people were reduced to penury, cut off in whatever way they turned even from their daily bread, must be convinced that Ireland has had something more than spiritual grievances to complain of.

At the conclusion of the last article we had to come down to the period of the Restoration in England. In Ireland warfare, confiscations, famine and diseases that always accompany famine must have destroyed all manufactures and left the people nothing but raw materials, livestock and the part of the land they were not dispossessed of.

The Cattle and Navigation act of 1663 was aimed to destroy the value of the livestock—the livestock trade. The export of cattle and sheep was prevented by imposing tariff penalties amounting to almost the value of the stock itself. This repressive code was strengthened by a second Cattle act passed in 1666.

Numerous other acts and orders in council between that date and 1671 led to the inevitable result that Irish farmers were left with livestock on their hands, for which they were prohibited from finding a market, and the value of beasts fell so low that ruin followed.

Driven from the cattle trade, a big business then grew up in the exportation of provisions to Western Europe and the British colonies in America and the West Indies. The navigation acts interfered to some extent, particularly those prohibiting direct importations from the plantation (4 Geo. II., ch. 15; 6 Geo. II., ch. 13.)

"Denying the import from those countries to Ireland has, in effect, prevented the export from Ireland to those countries. Money cannot be expected for our goods there; we must take theirs in exchange, and this can never answer on the terms of our being obliged in our return to pass by Ireland, to land those goods in England, to ship them a second time, and then to sail back again to Ireland. No trade will bear such unnecessary delay and expense." — Hely Hutchinson, Commercial Restraints.

Nevertheless, the provision trade grew to an enormous extent, particularly when, owing to the high price of provisions in England, the English market, heretofore closed, was partially opened in 1759, for a limited period. The exports from Cork, particularly, were greater than those from any other town in the British Empire.

GROWTH OF TRADE.

The extent of the growth of the provision trade between 1700 and 1780 and what its destruction meant may be judged from the following figures as given by Newenham. (Appendix IX.)

Table showing the quantities of beef, butter, pork and the number of live cattle exported from Ireland from the year 1700 to 1789 in periods of four years:

Then came a series of embargoes due to the war between England and the American Colonies, that ruined this great trade, caused acute distress throughout the country and made the commercial situation so intolerable as to be one of the chief causes of the agitation for freedom to trade that led to the formation of the Volunteers in 1778 and the securing in 1782 of the Legislative independence of the Irish Parliament.

It was enacted by an Order in Council on January 21, 1776, that:

"No provisions of any kind can be exported from any Irish port except beef, pork, butter and bacon to Great Britain, and from thence to any part of the British Dominions, with the exception of the revolted Colonies, and also to any ships and vessels in the King's Service."

This was followed by a further Order in Council on May 29, 1778, more strongly enforcing the embargo, whereby it was enacted that:

"No provisions should be exported from Ireland, even when laden on British ships and going to Great Britain, until further orders.

Regarding this destruction of the provision trade, Arthur Young, the English writer, observed:

"Of all the restrictions which England has at different times most implicitly laid upon the trade of Ireland, there is none more obnoxious than the embargoes on their provision trade. The prohibitions of the export of woolens, and various other articles, have this, at least in their favor, that they are advantageous to similar manufactures in England, and Ireland has long trained to the sacrifice of her natural advantage as a dependent country; but in respect to embargoes even this shallow pretence is wanting; a whole kingdom is sacrificed and plundered, not to enrich England but three or four London contractors!"

The woolen industry had progressed so rapidly that by the end of the 17th Century over 40,000 families in Ireland were engaged in it, the majority of whom were Protestants. It reached its zenith in 1687, when the value of the exports amounted to £70,521. This great trade excited the jealousy and fear of the English manufacturers to such an extent that numerous petitions were presented by them to the English Parliament, calling for the destruction of the industry in Ireland. Several acts had been passed between 1660 and 1698 (12 Chas. II., ch. 4; 12 Chas. II., ch. 32; 14 Chas. II., ch. 18) which militated against Ireland, but the final blow against the trade was truck in 1698 and 1699.

LORDS AGAINST IT.

On June 9 the English Parliament addressed King William III. on the subject with great vigor. The House of Lords represented that:

"The growing manufacture of cloth in Ireland, both by the cheapness of all sorts of necessaries of life and the goodness of material for making all manner of cloth,"

having made the King's loyal subjects in England very apprehensive that the further growth of it would greatly prejudice the said manufacture here, and lessen the value of lands, they, the lords, besought His Most Sacred Majesty to be pleased "in the most public and effectual way that may be" to declare to all his subjects of Ireland that

"The growth and increase of the woolen manufacture there hath long been and will ever be, looked upon with great jealousy by all his subjects of the Kingdom of England."—(Fox, Handbook).

The House of Commons went on record thus:

"Being very sensible that the wealth and power of this Kingdom do, in a great measure, depend on the preservation of the woolen manufacture as much as possible entire to this realm."

conceived that it became them, like their ancestors, to be jealous of the increase and establishment of it elsewhere, and to use their utmost endeavors to prevent it.

"They cannot without trouble observe that Ireland should of late apply itself to the woolen manufacture to the great prejudice of the trade of England. . . . Parliament will be necessitated to interfere to prevent the mischief that threatens . . . His Majesty's protection and favor in this matter is most humbly implored," etc., etc.

(Fox, Handbood.)

In conformity with the spirit of the foregoing representations, an act (10 and 11 Wm. III., ch. 10) was passed by the English Parliament in 1699, following on a law enacted the previous year by the English dominated Irish Parliament (10 Wm. III, ch. 5, I. S.) imposing a prohibitive duty on exports of cloth—prohibiting "perpetually the exportation from Ireland of all goods made or mixed with wool."

INDUSTRY DESTROYED.

This legislation of 1699 destroyed the woolen industry. It left people without employment and reduced them to destitution. Famine followed as a direct and indirect result, lasting in some parts of the country for over half a century. Industrious Protestants to the number of 40,000 were rendered idle, and 20,000 Presbyterians and other non-conformists emigrated from Ireland to America, where they and their descendants afterwards formed part of Washington's army in the War of the Revolution.

For it is to be noted that Irishmen of all creeds suffered from the repressive code of penal laws in operation against Irish trade. Religion was not the cause of these measures. In fact, Irish Protestants were the greatest sufferers, because at this time the Catholics could only be said to exist.

"Identity of religion," says Dr. Sigerson, (Intro. 'Last Ind. Parlt. of Ireland'), "when both sides were Protestant, did not save the elder settlers from confiscation, or the latter from robbery of their rights, blockade of their commerce, destruction of their industries, or the corruption and annihilation of their Parliament."

The cotton manufacture, which began to make some progress in Ireland did not get a chance of development. The Navigation Acts, referred to before, by preventing the direct importation of raw material and the direct exportation abroad of the manufactured stuff, strangled the industry in its infancy. The Act of 1721 (7 Geo. I, ch. 7.), prohibiting the inhabitants of Great Britain from wearing cotton goods other than those manufactured in Great Britain, and the enforced admittance of English manufactured cotton into Ireland practically free of duty, may be said to have discouraged the pursuit of this trade in Ireland.

LINEN INDUSTRY.

Contrary to the general supposition, the linen industry in Ireland dates back many centuries anterior to the events that have given rise to what is popularly called the "Ulster Question." But at that time of the Plantation of Charles I., the Earl of Strafford, the English Deputy in Ireland extended the industry in Ireland to benefit the settlers, because as there was no linen manufacture in England at the time, it did not conflict with British trade. The industry flourished to such an extent that in 1685 there were exported 1,851 pieces of linen cloth, and 3,582 cwt. of linen yarn. (Vide Sir Wm. Petty.)

In suppressing the woolen trade in 1698, England undertook to encourage the linen trade in its stead. "The Irish House," says Froude, meaning the Colonial Parliament that English despotism and corruption kept in slavish abjection, in dread of abolition if they refused, "relying on the promise of encouragement to their linen trade, and otherwise unable to help themselves, acquiesced." (English in Ireland, Vol. I.)

ENGLISH TARDY.

The English undertaking was tardily and only partly kept for a short period, and then it was broken when Scotch manufacture began to increase. In 1717 (Act of 3 Geo. I., 21), permission to export the inferior linens to the plantations was made conditional on British fine lines being allowed into Ireland free of duty; incidentally Irish linens exported to England were subjected to such a duty as amounted to prohibition.

In 1759, the British government, greatly alarmed at the growing export of sail cloth, canvas and cordage to the British and other navies and mercantile marines caused by bounties granted by the Irish Parliament to encourage this side of the linen industry, passed an act (23 Geo. III., ch. 33), whereby duties on Irish sail cloth, etc., equivalent to the amount of the bounties were imposed.

BOUNTIES GRANTED.

At the same time bounties were granted on all kinds of hemp manufacture exported from England to Ireland and abroad. Thus the linen industry was "assisted" and "encouraged" at the expense of the woollen trade which had formed the staple manufacture of the country. In point of fact, any assistance the Irish linen industry received came from the Irish (so-called) and not the English Parliament. The Irish linen trade was tolerated by the latter as long as it did not interfere with any existing British industry, but as soon as the English themselves began to manufacture, undertakings and agreements were cast to the winds.

Far from the popular opinion, the linen industry was not confined to the north; the south and the west, on the contrary, had a share of it, as indeed had the whole country. The fact that the north, in the end, secured the monopoly may, in some measure, be traced to the fact that Louis Commelin, a Huguenot refugee, who was appointed "overseer of the royal linen manufactory of Ireland," settled in the north and introduced better methods of manufacture there.

RESTRICTIONS ORDERED.

As a result Lurgan and Lisburn became the centres of the industry, but when Crommelin attempted to establish himself in Kilkenny, there was such a chorus of disapproval and opposition in England that he was unable to obtain a patent except on condition that only the coarsest linens were made there.

In reality, however, it was the industrial revolution, by which home industry was abolished and manufactures centralized, coupled with the falling off of flax cultivation in the south, owing to the insecurity of tenure as compared with the north, and the higher tithes demanded per acre for flax in the south, that eventually made the north the stronghold of the linen manufacture.

HEILEMAN'S

New Style Lager

The Snappy Cereal Beverage

Heileman's New Style Lager is the best substitute on the market today for beer

The reason for this is that for 2 years prior to the time the Federal Government announced that the sale of 2¾% beer would not be permitted we were brewing New Style Lager which is a non-intoxicating cereal beverage. As a matter of fact, we determined several years ago when New Style Lager was first manufactured, not to market same until such a time as careful analysis proved it to be absolutely perfect in every respect.

This having been accomplished, we marketed same and immediately Heileman's New Style Lager attained the same popularity as our famous Old Style Lager, for which this company was noted. This was largely due to the pronounced individuality of taste, quality and snappy flavor.

HEILEMAN'S

New Style Lager

The Snappy Cereal Beverage

Is made from only the choicest materials obtainable, but it is not the material alone which makes NEW STYLE LAGER so palatable, as it is the knack of our knowing how to blend the different materials to get that snappy and aromatic flavor minus the alcohol.

This delightful drink is very palatable and nutritious. It is satisfying, refreshing, invigorating and has that snappy taste enjoyed by the entire family. It will almost immediately relieve fatigue, and is the universal favorite with those of discriminating taste—that is why we suggest you try it today.

Mail and telephone orders will have special attention. Shipments will be made the same day received.

POLICE UNIONS ARE DEFENDED BY GOMPERS

Labor to organize police unions, he added.

The I. W. W. was characterized by Gompers as "a noise maker, because of its radical and irresponsible propaganda and agitation."

Police Rumors Are Discounted by High Officials as Propaganda

President McInnis' statement that the striking police would be back at work Saturday was characterized today as "police propaganda designed to discourage ex-service men from applying for jobs on the Boston police force."

This charge was made by a high State official, who said that the labor leaders, despairing of the policemen being able to get their old jobs back, are trying to hinder the work of organizing a new police force by insidious propaganda.

Meantime, Organizer Frank H. McCarthy, spokesman for the American Federation of Labor, asked what that body intended to do for the striking police, would only reply: "I have nothing to say whatsoever."

This was his sole answer to all inquiries concerning the police situation.

The Governor's office joined with Commissioner Curtis today in denying rumors that the strikers would be back at work soon. Henry B. Endicott and the Governor's office both denied most emphatically another rumor, apparently from the same source, that a conference was planned at the State House looking towards a compromise in the strike.

The Committee of Seventeen of the Boston Central Labor Union, which handled the general strike vote for that organization, was in session today with representatives of the striking police, but refused any information regarding its deliberations.

The Governor's office gave the lit definitely to any rumors that any of the striking police would be taken back to work shortly, the statement being a reiteration of what Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis has previously said, couched in much stronger language.

According to this statement, the Attorney General of the Commonwealth has declared the places of the strikers vacant, and has declared that they cannot return to these places. Under the laws of Massachusetts the opinion of the Attorney General is law, and can be overruled only by a decision of the Supreme Court.

The only way in which any of the strikers can returned is to have the Supreme Court reverse the decision of Attorney General Henry Wyman, or to take new civil service examinations and be placed on the eligible list.

POLICE PROPAGANDA.

"Commissioner Curtis could not give any of the strikers back their jobs if he wanted to," said the authority, who gave out the statement, "and any statements which say that the police are going back to work within a few days through the efforts of any committee in effecting a compromise are simply police propaganda, designed to discourage ex-service men from applying for positions on the force."

Both the Governor's office and Henry B. Endicott were most emphatic in their denials that any conference had been arranged between Governor Coolidge and Mr. Endicott, looking towards a compromise. No such a conference was even thought of, according to the Governor's office.

Mr. Endicott's office also denied statements to the effect that he had contributed anything to the police union. His contribution, was to the fund for the loyal police and other public defenders, it was stated.

Sensational reading is promised in the report of the Mayor's committee of twenty-four, appointed before the strike to use its offices to avert that happening. Chairman James J. Storrow is to present the report at City Hall tomorrow. He declined to discuss its contents today, but in view of the rebuffs offered the committee by Commissioner Curtis, and the alleged break between the Commissioner and His Honor, interesting disclosures are expected.

Organizer Frank H. McCarthy of the American Federation of Labor was seen at Wells Memorial Hall by an American reporter, who asked him the following question:

"What is the American Federation of Labor going to do for the striking policemen?"

"Nothing to say whatsoever!" was McCarthy's answer.

The reporter insisted that the question was of great importance.

"Nothing to say whatsoever!" repeated McCarthy.

And nothing further would he say.

CERTIFY 28 APPLICANTS.

Twenty-eight applicants for police jobs were today certified by the Civil Service Commission. They are from the first group of candidates who were examined on August 8, about a month before the strike. Eleven men who were appointed last week and went to work on Monday were the last of the candidates lef. over from the previous civil service examination.

The twenty-eight new men reported today at headquarters for final examinations, and because of crowded conditions at headquarters, occupied entirely by the military police, were taken to the grand jury room in the courthouse, Sergeant Maurice W. Sullivan acting as guard. The men probably will report about the first of next week to be sworn in and will be assigned to duty at once.

More than twenty men were accepted by the preliminary examination board at Kingsley Hall today and twenty-six were rejected. The number was only about half as large as yesterday.

Influenza Will Not Return This Year, Says Expert

Influenza will not return this season, in the opinion of Dr. Bernard W. Carey, director of communicable diseases of the State Board of Health.

At this time last year there were thousands of cases in Massachusetts, but so far this month only 114 cases have been reported.

"One man's guess is as good as another's," Dr. Carey admitted, "as the origin of the disease still is unknown. But from what I have seen of the situation I think we will have a normal season."

Fresh air, sunshine, nourishing food and eight hours' sleep nightly are the safeguards against influenza, Dr. Carey declared.

"LOYAL POLICE" FUND OVER $100,000

The fund for the Defenders of Public Safety passed the $100,000 mark today. Women continue to contribute in large numbers. The sentiment of women subscribers is revealed in the following letter received in today's mail:

"Boston, Sept. 23, 1919.

"Dear Sirs—Just a bit to help out the fund for the State Guard and loyal police. I wish it might be many, many times as much, but I am one of the unfortunate ones whose salary is no larger than before the war. I have three people to take care of, and find it very hard to do for others as I would like to do. I could not rest, however, without sending a little to express some of the gratitude we all feel to the men who have kept our city a fit place for an

"AMERICAN WOMAN."

Business firms have contributed as high as $5,000 and $10,000. The largest individual subscription is $5,000.

An Attleboro concern sent $100 today. A donation of $1,000 was signed "A citizen."

One public-spirited citizen today sent a check for $2,500.

A woman wrote: "My mother and I wished to contribute our mite toward good government." The letter contained a folded $5 bill. Inclosures of silver, carefully wrapped in brown paper, from poor but enthusiastic subscribers are among the most welcome. No amount is too small or too large, say those in charge.

Many of the subscriptions are given in memory of persons who in life were active in promoting and protecting the welfare of the public.

An association of colored people contributed $100. A Boston physician sent $50, writing that he considered it "a most important duty."

A workman sent $5 for what he characterized "a most popular fund." An ex-petty officer on the U. S. S. Omaha, gave $1 to men whom he considered "100 per cent American." A letter from Scituate contained $1.

A Boston firm contributed $100, and said it would give more but for the fact that several of its employes were doing strike duty with the State Guard and the firm was paying their salary during absence.

Subscriptions should be sent to the fund treasurer, John R. Macomber, First National Bank, Boston.

Mr. Greenwood also stated that there was a possibility he would be a candidate again next year, and thanked his supporters for their efforts.

ALLEN BEATS BOTTOMLY.

Former Representative J. Weston Allen defeated Robert J. Bottomly for the Republican nomination for attorney-general by 5,354 votes. The complete vote was Allen, 39,495; Bottomly, 34,141; Hitchcock, 19,499; Stoneman, 19,439; Hallowell, 12,138, and Rowley, 5,528.

District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier secured both the Republican and Democratic nominations for district attorney of Suffolk County, his nearest opponent being Daniel J. Kiley on the Democratic side.

Nearly 79,000 votes were cast in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor; more than 131,000 for the Republican nomination for treasurer, and 124,000 for the Republican nomination for Attorney-General.

Fashion Week Exposition of Autumn Modes

THE variety and richness of our collection of Autumn and Winter Fashions, including many extraordinarily beautiful importations from Paris, are making our store a veritable Mecca for thousands of Boston and New England women, who are revelling in the opportunity once more to see a complete assemblage of carefully chosen Paris creations.

The gorgeous wraps and fur trimmed suits, the lavishly made gowns and the infinitely chic hats from Paris have never seemed quite so alluring—possibly because it is so long since we have enjoyed the privilege of offering a really complete exhibition of foreign models, or possibly because the French have outdone even themselves in the originality of their apparel creations, knowing that this season is destined to mark the triumphant re-establishment of their influence in America.

Among the Paris houses represented by original creations in our showing of Fashions are these:

'Agnes Worth Martial et 'Armand Gabrielle Chanel 'Avadis
Paquin Premet Cheruit Weeks Jenny Jeanne Lanvin Renee
Madelein et Madeleine Drecol Douret Poiret Callot Soeurs

FURS

The ever-increasing prevalence of Furs and Fur Coats results, naturally, in an ever-increasing variety of styles, particularly in the fur coat, which has cast aside the conventionalism which formerly marked it, and now presents itself in as many different models as though fur were the most pliable of woolen fabrics!

Indeed, the ingenuity of the furrier provides us with combinations of fur, and fur coats with lines we would hardly have deemed possible in years past.

There are short, hip-length fur coats in sleek and shiny seal, some with squirrel collars and cuffs, youthful beaver and nutria models, raccoon and opossum and other skins noted for durability, coats with cape collars in fascinating sizes and shapes—these and others up to the regally splendid mantles of mink and sable which are worth thousands of dollars.

Discriminating women rightly regard the buying of a fur coat as a serious investment deserving careful study, and we invite the most rigid inspection of what we regard as the finest collection of furs in all New England.

Coats, 150.00 to 4000.00
Scarfs, 40.00 to 1000.00

If you have any difficulty with your shopping problems, why not consult our Shopping Counselor, whose knowledge of the store, and long experience, are sure to prove helpful.

HATS

No others have ever equalled the Parisienne modistes when it comes to the creation of chapeaux in which sheer daring, and a feeling for the picturesque in line and color, are notable.

The hats which our buyer brought back from Paris reveal this extreme originality in the shape, the color combinations, and the manner in which the trimming—however slight—is posed. These special qualities of the typically French hat are faithfully reflected in our own copies.

5.00 to 200.00

BLOUSES

The French blouses include both the short-sleeved casaques of georgette, richly embellished with beads, and the finely wrought linens and muslins with hand hemstitching and embroidery. And the American modes feature those rich looking dark colored blouses which harmonize so succesfully with Winter suits.

7.50 to 75.00

DRESSES

Nearly every woman who plans to buy a dress is agitated over the sleeve length question. Will she follow Paris and wear sleeves elbow high—or higher—or will she remain conservative and swathe her very wrists in fabric? Our answer is to provide such a showing of handsome gowns of both types that a customer must needs be satisfied whichever she chooses.

The evening dresses are composed sometimes of tulle and glittering sequins, paillettes and jet, sometimes of chiffon velvet, again of richly brocaded silken stuffs. Indubitably the favorites in woolen fabrics are duvetyn for dressier types and tricotine for the more tailored.

29.50 to 475.00

SUITS

The suit importations show how cleverly the Parisienne can combine materials with rich fur, braid or buttons.

The modes, as revealed by the French suits and reflected in the American adaptations, are not confined to a single silhouette, but each model is distinctive and individual, and whether one prefers the long slenderness of the redingote or the graceful, less severe and shorter broken lines, one is likely to find the desired type in our collection.

35.00 to 500.00

WRAPS

The whole Wrap kingdom, from the jaunty sport sweater jacket and the mannish top coat to the luxurious opera cloak from Paris, is represented in our very large collection. Perhaps the soft pile fabrics, such as bolivia and evora, are most often used for street coats, and lovely velvets and brocades for the evening wraps.

25.00 to 550.00

SKIRTS

What woman can resist the charm of the woolen plaid skirt, which seems to have captured all the vivid beauty of Autumn leaves in its coloring? Box pleated plaids and accordion pleated plaids are equally handsome—of course there are other types of skirts, but the plaids are the favorites!

15.00 to 32.50

Do not fail to see the beautiful examples of the Apparel Creators' Art shown in our Washington Street windows during Fashion Week.

LAW TO BLOCK AUTO THIEVES IN EFFECT

State Officials Expect That Fear of Prison Sentences Will Curb Evil

By C. F. DONNOCKER

Automobiles will no longer be stolen with impunity, if the drastic measures which have recently been enacted and which either have gone into effect or will in the near future, produce the results expected by the State officials.

The theft of autos has become so common all over the United States that automobile associations, boards of trade and State officials have become desperate and many States have enacted laws which will go a long way in curbing this vicious form of theft.

A new law went into effect yesterday in Massachusetts which has for a penalty imprisonment in the State prison for not less than five years nor more than ten, for stealing an automobile, motorcycle, or for knowingly receiving or buying either of these or concealing an automobile or motorcycle or harboring the thief.

THEFTS EVERY DAY.

Such a drastic law with its punishment undoubtedly will curb the wholesale thefts which have been occurring with almost nightly regularity.

Next Friday the law regulating the sale of second-hand motor vehicles and parts becomes effective. The measure is designed to make it extremely difficult for an auto thief to dispose of a car or parts without being detected, through the licensing of all persons, firms and corporations engaged in the business of buying, selling or exchanging second-hand motor vehicles or parts.

WHOLE STATE NOTIFIED.

All the heads of the licensing departments of the various towns and cities of the State and the heads of police departments have been notified of the new law in detail, and the State Highway Commission is prepared to furnish free of charge all blanks and forms necessary for licenses.

While all these measures have been taken to protect owners and dealers from the theft of their cars, it is essential that private individuals and owners give their co-operation to the officials in stamping out this evil.

1920 NUMBER PLATES WILL BE OUT NOV. 1

Applications for registration of motor vehicles in Massachusetts for 1920 will be accepted October 20 and distribution of the new number plates will start November 1.

This important announcement, of interest to every owner of a motor car in the State, was given out yesterday at the office of the Highway Commission.

Proper blanks for use in applying for registration will be mailed October 20 to practically every person who registered a passenger car or truck during 1919, and request is made by the Highway Commisson that no other application form be used.

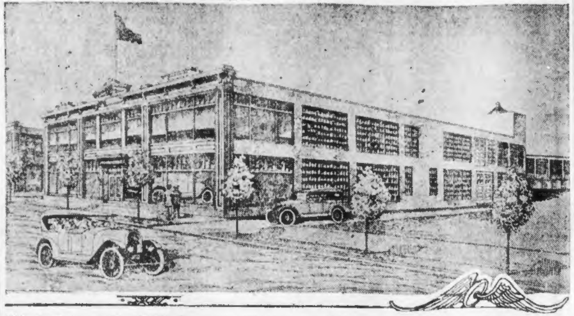
FORM NEW COMPANY TO HANDLE WESTCOTT

A new company has been formed and is now distributing Westcott cars in this territory. J. W. Jackman and W. S. Jameson comprise the Jackman-Jameson Company and have taken temporary quarters at No. 910 Commonwealth avenue in the Hume Carriage Building.

The company has obtained practically all the New England territory outside of Connecticut, and a full line of cars is expected here shortly.

The Westcott car is well known and has given excellent satisfaction in this territory and the new company is enthusiastic over the future of the car in New England.

NEW HOME OF THE HENSHAW MOTOR CO.



This structure, at No. 989-997 Commonwealth avenue, is said to be one of the best appointed in the city.

Boston's automobile business is rapidly taking almost complete possession of that part of Commonwealth avenue between the Cottage Farm bridge and Brighton avenue. This section is growing faster than any other with structures erected for the motor car, motor truck, tire and accessories trade and at the existing rate of progress will presently become the automobile trade center of the city. Several new buildings have recently been erected and occupied and others are advancing toward completion.

Among the latter is the new home of the Henshaw Motor Company, Dodge Brothers dealers, which is to be ready for occupancy in about three weeks. The present quarters of this company are at No. 1079 Commonwealth avenue, and the new building is nearby at No. 989-997 on the same thoroughfare. The structure was designed especially for the occupance of this company by F. A. Norcross, architect, and is being constructed by William London. In many respects it is said to be the most advanced building of its kind in the city.

The building has a frontage of 100 feet on Commonwealth avenue and runs back to a depth that provides, on the two floors, an acre of floor space. In the interior there is a forty foot span without posts, which, it is believed, is the largest unobstructed space in any building of the kind in Boston.

Mr. Fixit: I have a 1917 Dodge. We traveled just 250 miles and it took just four quarts of oil. Do you consider that enough? We get the best obtainable. Do you think a grade heavier would be cheaper in the long run? FAIRFAX.

Oil is always cheaper than machinery. If you have been using the lighest grade you might try a medium, but as cold weather is coming I would not advise using a heavy grade. You seem to be using a little too much oil, possibly. A good average for a Dodge of that year is seventy-five to eighty miles per quart, so you see you are not far off. Probably here is a little leakage somewhere. Examine the car when the motor is running idle and see if you notice any oil dripping from the bottom of the crank-case. It is a good plan to drain off the old oil every few weeks and flush the crank-case out with kerosene and fill with fresh oil. Shall be pleased to hear further from you.

Dear Sir: I have a 1915 Ford touring car. Lately I have been troubled by the plugs on the first and second cylinders becoming covered with soot, causing them to miss going up grade, but the car runs perfectly on the level. I clean the plugs and they become covered again inside of fifty miles. I keep oil between both pet cocks. Third and fourth plugs are always clean.
Mattapan. C. F. M.

Your trouble can be caused by several things. Probably you have some worn piston rings on those pistons which allows the oil to be sucked up into the cylinders. This would be especially true when going up hill. You may have bad valves on those cylinders and lack compression, which might account for the sooty plugs. You did not say whether the soot was wet or dry. If wet it is pretty certain that the rings are worn. Take off the cylinder head and grind those valves and take a testing gauge and feel to see if there is much play between the pistons and the cylinder walls. If the valves are in good shape you can feel pretty certain that you need new piston rings.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a 1912 Mitchell 4-cylinder car. My exhaust valves are supposed to close 10 degrees past dead centre and inlet open 15 degrees past dead centre, but the exhaust closes at dead centre and the inlet opens 25 degrees past dead centre. The cams do not seem to be worn much. I took the engine down and moved the timing gears ahead two teeth and tried to start the motor. It fired once and then bucked, so I moved the gears back to the old place. When I tried to start the motor it did the same thing. It looks to me as if it fired on one cylinder right and then fires too soon on the others.

(The writer goes on to tell that he took his magneto off. Everything seemed to be O. K. He tried to time his magneto, etc. He wants assistance.) B. T. C.
Auburndale, Mass.

Your engine is all out of time and it is evidently in such condition that I cannot recommend that you even try to time it yourself. If one cylinder fires correctly, all will, making due allowance for minor cam lag, due to wear. My advice is to take the car to some competent mechanic who is able to time a motor and let him fix it. It is almost impossible for one man to time a motor. You need some one to turn it over by hand and [illegible] too [illegible] it according to the valves and position of the piston. Of course the markings on the flywheel help you in this, too.

Mr. Fixit: A 5 h. p. marine gas engine had to be rebored and an oversize piston fitted. Does the compression have to be reduced? What other effect does it have on the engine? Why are some marine engines made to run right and some left handed? AMATEUR.

The compression will not have to be reduced. It might increase the power of the motor; having a larger cylinder naturally would. I know of no particular reason. Some of the old autos, especially foreign cars were built so that their motors ran anti-clockwise.

COMPLETE SERVICE FOR OWNERS OF VIM TRUCKS

Wayne W. Light, director of sales of the Vim Motor Truck Company of Philadelphia, was in town recently looking over the local sales organization and equipment for the care of Vim owners, and highly complimented George W. Taggart for the way in which he had handled the New England business.

Mr. Light believes that the opportunities for the sale of trucks in New England are unlimited and is pleased with the way the New England people have received the Vim product.

The Vim company has always made service one of its maxims and the local company has a large and well-equipped service department, which makes a practice of giving periodic free inspections of trucks sold. By this method an accurate check is kept on just what each vehicle is doing and longer life and better service is made possible.

Demand for Denby Trucks Runs to 5-Ton Model

"One of the indications that the building business is on the increase," says W. P. Woodbridge of the local Denby agency, "is the fact that contractors are buying five-ton models. A few months ago there was little demand for these heavy duty trucks, but now they are in great demand and manufacturers are put to it to supply their dealers with these models.

"The Denby models are all internal gear driven, and we find that this style of truck is especially adapted to heavy duty work. The Denby five-ton truck is designed and built to give the greatest possible results—to make it pay the owner maximum dividends. Nothing has been left undone that would increase its reliability, its road ability and economy in fuel, upkeep and maintenance.

"New England owners want to know that they can have immediate service on parts and repairs, and this is one of the features of our company."

DENY PARDON TO NEW BEDFORD LIFER

New Bedford, Sept. 24.—Word has been received by District Attorney Joseph T. Kenney that a pardon has been denied to Charles Matrony, now serving a life sentence in State prison as a result of his conviction for second degree murder. Matrony was found guilty in connection with the death of Annie Walsh whose body was found hacked to pieces on a barge of which he was the captain. He has been in prison since 1911.

TAGGART WILL SOON BE BACK AT HIS DESK

George W. Taggart, the local manager of the Vim Motor Truck Company of New England, who recently underwent an operation, is on the road to rapid recovery and his many friends and business acquaintances will be glad to soon welcome him back to the office.

MASTER TRUCKS HAVE HOME IN BOSTON

New Company Located in Commonwealth Avenue; Well-Known Men in Charge

The Master Truck, built in Chicago and well-known throughout the West, will be distributed in this territory by the Master Truck Company of New England, with offices and salesrooms at No. 1035 Commonwealth avenue.

The new company has some well-known Boston men connected with it. The officers are: Charles D. Willcutt, president; M. W. Chipman, vice-president; Myron L. Crowe, treasurer, and Walter B. Hennigan, general manager and assistant treasurer.

Mr. Willcut was formerly sales manager for the Hall Motor Truck Company of Boston and is well known to the trade.

Walter Hennigan was with the Henley-Kimball Company and went to the Paige-Detroit Company of New England as sales manager in 1914.

The company has all of the New England territory for the distribution of Masters trucks. These come in one and one-half to five-ton models, with internal gear on the small models and worm gear on the larger ones.

The new salesrooms are practically completed and several models are now on exhibition. The service department is connected with the salesrooms, making an extensive plant for the care of the Master owners.

"AMERICANS ALL" TO FEATURE LEGION FETE

A squad of "Americans All," soldiers of all nationalities assisting in recruiting for the United States army, will be a feature of the athletic and military carnival to be given by Massachusetts Branch of The American Legion at Braves Field, October 9, 10 and 11. Major F. R. Shaw, recruiting officer with headquarters at No. 3 Tremont Row, has received a request from the committee in charge of the carnival, and the major promised to assign a squad to the carnival with the approval of the War Department.

WATERTOWN PRIVATE TO GET D. S. MEDAL

Camp Devens, Sept. 24.—Private Francis Considine of No. 197 Boylston street, Watertown, a member of A Company, 308th Infantry, will be decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal at Camp Devens Friday afternoon by Major-General H. P. McCain.

The decoration has been awarded him for meritorious conduct at Harazee, France, a year ago, when as acting corporal he led a squad in an attack on an enemy machine gun nest, although wounded in both feet.

NEW BEDFORD MAYOR SEEKS BAY STATE TRACKS

New Bedford, Sept. 24.—As a result of his investigation to determine whether or not it would be practicable for the city to take over and operate the Bay State trolley line recently abandoned, Mayor Ashley has been notified by the trustees of the road that they will lease the tracks to the city for $200 a month. The mayor will ask the city government to authorize him to enter into negotiations for the control of the line.

FORUM OFFERS CHANCE TO AIR VIEWS

Citizens Free to Express Opinions at Faneuil Hall Meetings

Are you in favor of prohibition, policemen's unions, ten-cent carfares or any other condition that confronts Boston? It will not be necessary to confine your opinions to your own parlor or office after the sessions of the American Forum get under way next month. Everyone is invited to attend the Forum in Faneuil Hall and speak right out, thus contributing his bit toward the moulding of public opinion.

Arrangements have been made to have a well known man speak on a popular topic. After the address the meeting will be thrown open to questions from the floor. There will follow a half-hour period in which any American citizen will be permitted to talk for three or four minutes on any subject.

The committee in charge of promises that the meeting will be absolutely non-partisan and non-denominational. The forum will meet every Sunday night.

The use of Faneuil Hall by the State guardsmen as a dormintory prevented the opening of the Forum last Sunday night as had been previously announced. The committee believes that if the guards are still on duty in October, arrangements will be made to have it for the Forum on Sunday nights. James A. Watson, Daniel A. MacKay, Dr. Thomas H. Moran and Charles Franklin Jones are preparing the Winter program of the Forum.

A secret vote on some public question will be taken at each meeting. The result will represent the opinion of the Forum. There will also be community singing at each session.

ALEXANDER COCHRANE'S ESTATE IS $3,123,409

The late Alexander Cochrane, of No. 257 Commonwealth avenue left an estate valued at $3,123,409.61, according to an inventory filed in the Suffolk probate office.

The estate consists of $365,956 in real estate and $2,752,459.64 in personal property.

ASK RECEIVER FOR NELSON BLOWER CO.

Assets Enough to Pay All Obligations, Assert Pawtucket Petitioners

The William H. Haskell Manufacturing Company of Pawtucket, R. I., has filed a petition in the Federal District Court for the appointment of a receiver for the Nelson Blower & Furnace Company, of Elkins street, South Boston. Judge George Bingham of the Federal court will give a hearing on the petition next Thursday.

During the war this concern was engaged extensively in the manufacture of gun mounts and at the present time is manufacturing tractors principally. According to the petition the corporation is believed to be solvent as a going concern. Its assets in that condition are more than enough to pay all obligations, the petition states, but if it is forced to close its doors there will be a great loss to the corporation and its creditors.

The assets of the Nelson Blower & Furnace Co. are estimated as being approximately $1,355,000, consisting chiefly of machinery, material which is in the process of manufacture and accounts receivable.

FAIRBANKS FILM AT PARK FULL OF "PEP"

Best Picture Yet of Athletic Comedian Replete in Thrills

"His Majesty, the American," shown at the Park Theatre, is a veritable Douglas Fairbanks' picture, with all the "pep" necessary to put it over successfully. The film is drawing packed houses.

The rush and tear of American life are well shown, "Doug" representing the typical American and his way of doing things. The plot is unusual in its originality, quite different from the hackneyed plots so common in motion pictures.

LOVE ELEMENT STRONG.

There is enough of the war element to recall the great world war and yet not too much to dominate the story. The political and love elements are cleverly woven into the plot, which is skillfully woven.

The patriotic appeal is identical but, forceful, and Americanism triumphs in the little European kingdom, "his majesty, Doug.," being "the American."

MISS DAW DAINTY.

Of course, there' sa girl in the story, and Marjorie Daw makes a charming Countess of Montenac. "The American," otherwise known as Bill Brooks, meets her first and finds out who she is afterwards. Fortunately for the happy ending of the love plot, she proves to be "not even a distant relation."

The story is consistent and has many symbolic significances. Their coincidence with current events are remarkable.

The Success of the Templar

THE success of the Templar demonstrates the increasing demand for a small car possessing the same refinement in design, and the same high class workmanship and materials which have heretofore been found only in high-powered, heavy and expensive cars.

The economy and increased convenience of such a small car is readily appreciated, while the distinctive beauty, complete equipment and superior finish of the Templar appeals to the class of buyers who desire a Superfine Small Car.

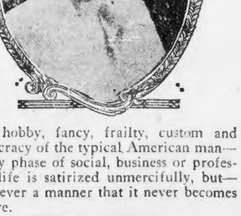
Women—here is the richest "get-back" at the men that you have ever read

Helen Rowland, the wittiest writer of epigrams in the country, has selected mankind as her subject, and handles him without gloves



Every hobby, fancy, frailty, custom and idiosyncracy of the typical American man—in every phase of social, business or professional life is satirized unmercifully, but—in so clever a manner that it never becomes offensive.

These epigrams run every Monday, Wednesday and Friday,

Two Baby Carriages Are Offered to Poor Mother

Two baby carriages have been offered by kindly American readers for the young Boston mother who could not take out her five-weeks-old baby because she had no conveyance and could not afford to buy one. One of the offers is from J. P. McGarry, and the other from Mrs. J. S. Oranburg.

Mrs. Oranburg writes: "It gives me great pleasure to be of assistance to a poor young mother."

If the Boston mother will communicate with the American she will be furnished with the addresses of these kind readers.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

To Acquire Curly Hair In a Single Night

Hair tortured with the hot curling iron is bound to become dry, harsh and brittle, as so many know from sad experience. It's far more sensible to use plain liquid silmerine, which can do no harm and which produces a curliness much prettier and more natural in appearance. This has the peculiar property of drying in the most beautiful waves and creases imaginable. It is also a fine dressing for the hair, preserving its texture and health, keeping it delightfully soft and glossy. A few ounces from the druggist will last for weeks, so it is not at all expensive.

Liquid silmerine is not sticky or greasy and it won't stain or streak hair or scalp. A convenient way to use it is to pour a little into a saucer and then with a clean tooth brush apply evenly to the hair from root to tip. If this is done before retiring the added glory to one's "crowning glory" will be quite in evidence in the morning. The hair will be nice and fluffy when combed out.—Advertisement.

VON TIRPITZ SAYS KAISERIN SAVED HINDENBURG

KAISER'S NOTES PRESERVED BY CABINET SCHEMERS

VON TIRPITZ MEMOIRS.

By ALFRED VON TIRPITZ,
Grand Admiral of the German Navy.

It may not be generally known, but it is a fact that both at the time of the outbreak of the war and throughout its course, the Kaiser frequently was the victim of nervous breakdowns, which gave his physicians much anxiety.

Perhaps there was also some connection between his highly nervous state and the fact that as he increased in years, he was inclined more and more to yield to the weaker natures in the circle of his intimate advisers.

In all my conversations with him at this time, when important decisions were being considered, I had to speak to the Kaiser tete-a-tete because if there had been a third person present, the Kaiser's own opinion would have been influenced easily by his strong impulse to play the part of Emperor in every decision he made.

In fact, this tendency toward the theatrical in the gravest matters of state was fraught with far-reaching consequences in the affairs of Germany. As time went on, and our fortunes rose in weltpolitik, the entire power of the German cabinets was rooted in this fact.

This was rendered possible for a remarkable reason, not existent, so far as I have been able to learn, in any other chancellery in the civilized world. Whenever any attempt was made during the Kaiser's reign on the part of men in responsible positions to check the encroachments of his cabinets, they came to an abrupt end; for, as the chiefs of the cabinets skillfully adapted themselves to His Majesty, the Kaiser looked upon these dignitaries merely as his clerks, whose main duty toward the Fatherland was to put his will into the form of a command.

The Kaiser several times stressed this fact in conversations with me. And at such times I often was forced to think of the tragedy of 1806, and the collapse of the Holy Roman Empire. At such times I wondered whether another debacle was imminent. Alas! The sad events of recent months in Germany provide the answer. Especially in time of war, the extremely slight balance of power judgment that emanated from the cabinet once more became a source of evil to the nation.

KAISER'S NOTES CAUSE TROUBLE.

While, under the administrations of Prince von Hohenlohe, up to 1900, and under Prince von Buelow, in the next nine years, I found a natural and constitutional support in my attitude against the encroachments of the cabinets, the exact opposite was the case under Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, who succeeded Buelow.

It is now to be feared that many persons who did not fulfill, during the period of the previous government, their duty of combating the sinister influences of the German cabinet, will now apply themselves with so much greater zeal to damning the whole German government system!

And it is to be assumed that the famous marginal notes of the Kaiser will play an important part here. These notes he interlined on myriads of official reports and other documents of the highest State importance, in his own handwriting, as the Kaiser readily adopted the marginal style of revision and review which his predecessors had used. To ascertain the historical value or worthlessness of these and similar expressions of moment, it is necessary for one to have known the Kaiser very well, and to realize his changing nervous moods and the part they wrought in his official opinions.

One of the peculiarities of the Kaiser was that he would take it for granted that his responsible advisers would examine these notes, and that they would be able to distinguish what was of permanent importance from what was the outcome of his moods. In general, the Kaiser listened to objections when they were well-founded, but unfortunately the cabineteers of Germany helped to give the Kaiser's marginal notes an exaggerated appearance of importance.

NOTES PRESERVED.

Every one of these notes, even those which were interpreted by the government officials solely as suggestions for their consideration, rather than commands of the Kaiser, were fixed by chemical means in the cabinet offices for the archives with the aid of indelible ink, much in the same way as pencil sketches by an artist are perpetuated. By this means there was preserved for future writers of history who are no longer eyewitnesses of the conditions they will have to describe an amount of material which, if turned to wrong account, seems calculated to give a very distorted picture of the Kaiser's personality, and also of the kind of government under him.

(Editor's Note: The misgivings of von Tirpitz in this regard have already been born out, for Berlin dispatches state that Herr Kautsky and other officials are combing the archives for the Ebert government, which has promised to make public disclosures of the Kaiser's regime which will startle the German people.)

Under the Kaiser the chief of his cabinet attended all official conferences wherein the various ministers who were individually responsible made their reports. It was natural that after the ministers had departed the monarch should discuss matters with the Chancellor in private. The Chancellors only needed, therefore, to wait for the right moment and adapt themselves to the imagination and temperament of the sovereign in order to carry out their own views.

(Editor's Note: While von Tirpitz studiously avoids mentioning names in this connection, there is no doubt he refers to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg individually.)

CHIEFS IN CABALS OF GERMANY.

There are very few persons who would be able to confine themselves to their own proper province in such a situation. Count Caprivi, Bismarck's successor, once told me that he knew of only one cabinet chief who proceeded strictly according to this principle, and that was General Albedyll. To be sure, our old Emperor (William I.) had a strong liking for transacting the affairs of state through the various departments. The interference of the chiefs of the cabinets in matters that were outside their province led to proposals which were not as carefully considered and thought out as those emanating from the responsible departments, which always have to bear the brunt in the event of failure, and therefore caused all matters to be worked out by their apparatus of statecraft before they were brought before the Kaiser.

That some chiefs of the cabinet remained in office too long was due undoubtedly to the Kaiser's fear of changing his immediate circle. But there was a drawback to this also. This was especially true as regards the army and navy bureau chiefs. For it estranged a man from active service conditions as he got more and more into the habits of court life.

In the navy, at least, a feeling predominated that many mistakes of the cabinet in what was strictly its own province—the selection of personnel—were due to the fact that Admiral von Muller became more and more a court politician and a bureaucrat and less and less a sailor.

My predecessor in office, Admiral Hollman, was a frequent guest at the Kaiser's hunting lodge in Rominten, and he and the chief of the cabinet participated in the reading of my official reports, even when he had retired from office. The quietness of the practical knowledge of Admiral Hollman, and his personal detachment, had a soothing effect on the Kaiser, as the latter rightly regarded Hollman as a friend who was watching his interests.

If the Kaiser did not always regard his official assistants in a light, even though they were not wanting in real loyalty, there is an explanation for this attitude which at least is plausible. I was informed by men who knew something about the youth of the Kaiser that his tutor, Professor Hinzpeter, had systematically taught him to distrust his future advisers. If this is correct, then Hinzpeter was not doing full justice to Prusso-German conditions of the time, even though it was necessary to teach the future ruler of the German people to be a judge of men.

EMPRESS SAVED HINDENBURG.

Those were grand days at Rominten. At the Kaiser's hunting lodge the whole household lived in bourgeois style. The meals were homely and simple, and the tables were decked with forest leaves. In the evening the company often read to one another. Among the regular visitors was the colonel of the nearest Russian frontier garrison. The Kaiser often requested this officer jokingly to spare the deer and the greensward if ever he were ordered to advance against Germany.

As a matter of fact, Czar Nicholas gave orders, when war with Russia came, that Rominten was not to be laid waste.

"The Supreme Hunting Lord" expected good sport from the navy. It was many years, however, before he accorded to me the rare privilege of wearing the forest-green hunting regalia of the court. I was often taken deer-stalking on Rominten heath in all its autumn glory, but during the time I was presenting my annual report, no stag was allowed to roam abroad. My good friends there, the game keepers saw to that.

During these times the Empress, whose regular attendance gave a special color to life at Rominten, refused on general principles to take part in the discussion of political questions. If however she believed now and then that she ought to interfere in the real interests of her husband, she did so with character and generally with success.

PRAISES EMPRESS.

I think of this noble lady with true reverence. Her nature was felt to be a blessing for the country by all of those who had the good fortune to know her more intimately.

When the Kaiser, on the occasion of the break in the Hindenburg campaign in the east early in 1915, suddenly started from the western front to censure and possibly to supplant von Hindenburg, after a difference of opinion had arisen between him and the field marshal, the Empress showed her mettle.

When the Kaiser's special train neared Berlin, the Empress caused her private car to be made ready, and ordered it attached to the Kaiser's train at Halle. She surprised her imperial husband the next morning and the train sped on to a reconciliation between Hindenburg and the Kaiser.

The well-known photograph which showed the Kaiser and Hindenburg together in Posen was taken by the Empress herself at this time. This photograph was reproduced and spread broadcast throughout the German empire, and was an effective piece of propaganda for glossing over the situation, which would have proved deeply unfortunate, had it not been for the fact and decision of the Empress herself.

CONTINUED TOMORROW.

In the next instalment Admiral von Tirpitz takes up the possibility of war between the United States and Japan, and tells the inside story of how Germany tried to effect a German-Japanese alliance, "which would have ended the war at once," he says. He also reveals his plan to form an alliance between Germany and the Scandinavian nations to prevent the success of Anglo-Saxon alliances, which he says the Japanese must now prevent.

NEW YORK CITY TO PASS DAYLIGHT-SAVING BILL

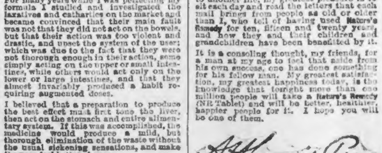
New York, Sept. 24.—Two daylight saving ordinances, one for seven, the other for five months, were introduced here into the Board of Aldermen. They were referred to the General Welfare Committee. President Moran, of the Board, said the passage of one was assured at the next meeting of the Board.

Marcus M. Marks, president of the National Daylight Saving Association, said that the introduction of a daylight ordinance here was the opening gun in the campaign to keep the extra hour of light law for the eastern time zone at least.

ENROLLMENT AT B. U. WILL REACH 5,000

Boston University promises to beat all previous records in enrollment this year. At least 5,000 students will be enrolled, as against 4,256 last year. Registration figures are as yet unavailable, as evening students are entering all this week at the College of Business Administration and the College of Secretarial Science.

Graduate School, School of Medicine, Department of Religious Education and Social Service, and School of Education are attracting students from far and wide. The total undergraduate registration at C. L. A. at Boston University is 619.



Their Medicine Chest For 20 Years

IT is characteristic of folks after they pass the allotted "three score years and ten," to look back over the days that are gone and thoughtfully live them over.

I find myself, at seventy-one, frequently drifting back a quarter of a century, when I see myself in the little drug store I owned at Bolivar, Mo., making and selling a vegetable compound to my friends and customers—what was then known only as Dr. Lewis' Medicine for Stomach, Liver and Bowel Complaints.

For many years while I was perfecting my formula I studied and investigated the laxatives and cathartics on the market and became convinced that their main fault was not that they did not act on the bowels, but that their action was too violent and drastic, and upset the system of the user; which was due to the fact that they were not thorough enough in their action, some simply acting on the upper or small intestines, while others would act only on the lower or large intestines, and that they almost invariably produced a habit requiring augmented doses.

I believed that a preparation to produce the best effect must first tone the liver, then act on the stomach and entire alimentary system. If this was accomplished, the medicine would produce a mild, but thorough elimination of the waste without the usual sickening sensations, and make the user feel better at once.

After experimenting with hundreds of different compounds, I at last perfected the formula that is now known as Nature's Remedy, which I truly believe goes further and does more than any laxative on the market today. The thousands of letters from users have convinced me I was right, and that the use of Nature's Remedy as a family medicine, even though he may have used it for twenty-five years, never has to increase the dose.

My knowledge of medicine and the results of its use in my own family and among my friends, before I ever offered it for sale, caused me to have great faith in Nature's Remedy from the very first.

And now as I find myself nearing the age when I must bow to the inevitable and go to another life, my greatest pleasure is to sit each day and read the letters that each mail brings from people as old or older than I, who tell of having used Nature's Remedy for ten, fifteen and twenty years, and how they and their children and grandchildren have been benefited by it.

It is a consoling thought, my friends, for a man at my age to feel that aside from his own success, one has done something for his fellow man. My greatest satisfaction, my greatest happiness today, is the knowledge that tonight more than one million people will take a Nature's Remedy (NR Tablet) and will be better, healthier, happier people for it. I hope you will be one of them.

Mild Winter Coming! Gulls Linger at Cuttyhunk

New Bedford, Sept. 24.—Down on the island of Cuttyhunk where the natives haven't much else to do but indulge in forecasts the oldest inhabitants are predicting a mild Winter for this section of the State. Their prognostications are based on the presence in Buzzards Bay of large numbers of herring gulls which apparently are making no move to wing southward.

Usually the first week in September sees the departure for the season of the last of the small mackerel and herring gulls.

A BIT OF FUR OR A WEALTH OF IT IS THE VERY LAST WORD FOR THE WOMAN OF FASHION THIS SEASON

Of the two dresses at the right, the first is an evening gown in the C. F. Hovey fashion display. It is of black satin, with an effective trimming of jet beads. At the end is a white chiffon velvet wrap, richly trimmed with flying fox and decorated with gold embroidery. One of the many features at White's.

RICH BLOUSES BIG FEATURE OF FASHION SHOW

Sheer and lace trimmed, with tassels and fringe, beaded and tucked, bordered and finely ruffled, the blouses of Madame Fall O' Nineteen are beautiful beyond compare, new in spirit and in style. Now every woman knows that her suit, though it cost half a thousand dollars, is still a disappointment if the blouse is not correct. "The accessories," so the authorities tell her, "are quite as important as the foundations of the wardrobe."

Call a blouse an accessory if you will, at any rate it has been a subject of serious consideration to the buyers of Boston stores. And the displays this fashion week show the result of the consideration.

BLOUSES ARE ALLURING.

At Shepard's there was never so alluring an array of blouses as are shown there this season. The first to attract attention as the shopper steps into the waist salon is a little creation in dark blue Georgette, made to fall loosely below the waistline. The border of braided embroidery, Greek key fashion, sets off the waist to advantage.

This is made sheer, to give madame reign to her fancy in the choice of dainty camisoles to wear underneath. These camisoles, preferably, should be of dainty hues, pink or flesh or lavender. The dark camisole would detract from the blouse. Most women prefer the light.

But further on in the Shepard collection are blouses of rare and unusual colors. The combinations of colors are works of genius. Take, for instance, one of cherry and plum, with bugle trimming; one of peanut and brown, and spruce and tan. Panels back and front may be seen on some; again allover embroidery adds its allure.

SET-IN SLEEVE POPULAR.

The kimono sleeve adorns some, though the authorities announce that the set-in sleeve is to be far more popular this Winter. Cut steel beads, again, is another feature of the new blouses. The extended waistline in a delicious little confection of a lace waist; and, again for unique colors, the trooper blue, are things to be lingered over.

With navy blue, coral, green and tan are favored as trimmings. Another waist is named the Venice waist. The advice to Madame Boston as to waists worn beneath the skirt, or outside, is that, for Summer, good taste favors the blouse outside. For Winter it is better, generally, to tuck 'em in.

Since, these last few years, the fur coat has become the sine qua non of most every woman, a new demand has arisen. This is for the separate skirt. Again, sports needs have called for separate skirts. These skirts are shown at White's in profusion, one for every need. Briefly describing, the sport skirts are mostly of plaid. They are made with plaits, either knife plaits, box plaits or accordion.

WITH BELTS AND POCKETS.

Belts are on every one of them, and—don't forgt—pockets. Another use for the separate skirt was suggested by a clever saleswoman at White's. As she said:

"Wool is expensive enough, we all know, these days. Well, haven't you had a perfectly good coat, to which the skirt was all worn out? The coat might be of black or green or brown. These skirts, of black or green or brown, plaid are meant to solve the difficulty of making the good coat give us further wear. Combine it with a skirt that blends in color and you have a suit that will serve you for several years more."

But the silk skirts, in black and colors, deserve a separate word. The colors of these are mostly taupe, a very favorite shade for this season. The satin skirts are trimmed uniquely, some with black embroidery, raised in a border about the skirt; some with white chain stitching, on belt and skirt.

MANY HAVE SASHES.

Sashes adorn the more feminine of them; plaits, again, appear on some. These are suitable for mourning wear. To the woman who wishes a nice skirt, for wear with a nice blouse, under her fur coat, these skirts should commend themselves.

But no woman, with poetry in her heart and an eye for beauty, can pass through Slattery's or Jordan's or Hovey's or Filene's without a tug at her heart as her glance lingers over the new lingerie. Of course the brave departures, pale yellow with trimmings of flowered lavender crepe, cause a smile and a glance of admiration. But the pinks—precious old standbys—and the subtle flesh shades were never so alluringly combined with picot and lace and tiny edging, as they are this year.

Underwear, as all the authorities tell us, should be selected even before the new gown. For, as the lingerie fits, so fits the gown. It is an axiom thrice proved.

Plan Steel Airships to Cross Atlantic in 50 Hours

By Universal Service.

(Special Cable Dispatch.)

London, Sept. 24.—Armstrong & Whitworth, Ltd., the great British engineering firm, is submitting to the government a scheme for the immediate construction of giant commercial airships of a type that will be the last word in luxury and efficiency.

The ships are to be entirely of steel and equipped with saloons, dining rooms, smoking rooms and sleeping cabins. They will have a carrying capacity of 70 tons, with a gas capacity of 3,500,000 cubic feet, and a nonstop radius of 6,000 miles.

It is planned to make the transatlantic trip within fifty hours each way, at a minimum speed of 80 miles per hour. The manufacturers predict the first big airship for this service will be ready in the Spring.

MANY APPLY FOR McKNIGHT SCHOLARSHIP

George C. Minard, superintendent of the Arlington public schools, is receiving by letter applications for the McKnight scholarship, given by Edwin T McKnight, president of the Senate. All applications should be filed before Friday. Mr. McKnight places no restrictions upon the choice of a student for the scholarship, except that it be given some boy graduated from the high school this year, who desires to enter upon a college course, and who, except for this assistance, would be unable to take a college course.

LEXINGTON GRANGE TO GIVE LITERARY PROGRAM

Lexington, Sept. 24.—An interesting meeting of Lexington Grange, No. 233, Patrons of Husbandry, will be held in Co-operative Hall, here, this evening, for following the business meeting, a literary event in the form of a competitive program between the women and men of the grange will be given. Each side will give a short entertainment, and judges will decide upon the result.

BELLINGHAM WILL CELEBRATE SATURDAY

Bellingham, Sept. 24.—Bellingham's welcome home committee has everything about ready for the welcome to be given service men on Saturday afternoon and evening in the town hall. Carroll E. White, chairman, plans a big time for the seventy service men with a dance, banquet, entertainment and smoker.

INJURED DEFENDING WORKMAN; ASKS $10,000

Robert L. Vaughn and Ella M. Vaughn of Waltham have each been sued for $10,000 by Thomas Ryan of Brookline. He alleges that he was asked to assist one of the defendants' workmen in an emergency and while so doing was injured.

BERKSHIRE CAR FARES TO BE INCREASED

North Adams, Sept. 24.—Although delay appears certin in reopening the lines of the Berkshire Street Railway Company, owing to the $60,000 attachment placed by the Boston & Albany railroad on coal owned by the Berkshire company, General Manager C. Q. Richmond has filed with the Public Service Commission a petition for increased fares.

Under the petition a 15-cent fare, instead of the former 10-cent rate, will prevail on the Adams and Williamstown lines and a 10-cent fare, instead of the former 5-cent fare, will be effective on the Briggsville line, while the Sand Springs and Bennington lines will be discontinued.

Beginning October 23 the road is to shorten its fare districts, but will retain the five cent flat fare. Transfers will be discontinued. Children under five years of age will be carried at the present rate of two for five cents, a full fare being charged for one.

The Public Service Commission will hold a public hearing relative to the petition next Monday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the State House, Boston.

MILFORD CONTINUES TO WELCOME HOME HEROES

Milford, Sept. 24.—Milford Welcome Home committee has $700 remaining in its treasury after giving three or four welcomes and now plans a final welcome to the service men who have arrived since the last celebration, June 9, in conjunction with the observance of Armistice Day, November 11, by Sergeant J. W. Powers Post, American Legion. The program will include an entertainment, banquet, speaking and dance.

Fogg Reunion Saturday

The annual reunion of the Fogg Family Association will be held this year at the Quincy House, Boston, on Saturday, September 27.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

Fashion Week in Boston

THERE are just two types of women, says a famous fashion artist—those who give character and personality to their clothes and those who get character and personality from their clothes. For both types this autumn is the most interesting season that has dawned for two years, and this week is red-letter week.

THIS is the week when a woman can do three or four weeks' work in one in getting a clear idea of the new fashions. It is Fashion Week in all Boston stores, and is as much for the benefit of out-of-town women as those of greater Boston.

GETTING a clear idea of fashions this fall is no simple process, for Dame Fashion is more contradictory than ever. For instance, along comes Lanvin with the demure "curtain silhouette." Fulness at the sides is sometimes carried to such an extreme that the model looks like a 17th century maid. In such a frock as this the front and back are kept very flat, so that one really looks like a pencil mark from the side. Then close on the heels of bouffant frocks follow the straight-line silhouettes. Some of the best looking frocks, and even suits and coats, show a decided tendency towards the Russian.

But these are only hints—seeing with one's own eyes is far more satisfactory

RAISE PROTEST AGAINST FARE INCREASE

Towns Outside Providence Threaten to Take Case to Court

Providence, Sept. 24.—Announcement [illegible] by trustees of the Rhode Island Company that the six cent trolley fare would go into effect Sunday met with a storm of protest. Preparations are under way by cities and towns outside Providence [illegible] the right of the people to the Supreme Court.

Representatives of these cities and towns charge the Providence officials with "double crossing" them and abandoning them to a policy which would rapidly depopulate the suburbs and rural sections.

It was asserted that the six cent fare, under the present zone system worked all to the advantage of Providence, and that commuting would be impossible. The two-cent charge for transfers, which also goes into effect Sunday, is being fought as discriminatory.

City Solicitor Frank H. Wildes of Cranston is leading the fight for the smaller communities. He charged today that the increased fare would make some commuters pay as high as [illegible] a minute and 16 cents per [illegible] for the privilege of riding. The [illegible] ride to Scituate would under the new fare schedule cost 36 cents.

Solicitor Wildes declared that the officials of Providence from the start adopted a selfish attitude in dealing with the trustees. The zones [illegible] were characterized as [illegible] the suburbs or in neighboring towns.

Mr. Wildes said that Warwick, West Warwick, Johnston and a dozen other small communities were ready to join Cranston in the drive on the six cent fare and the Rhode Island company.

GERMAN OIL BOATS ORDERED TO ENGLAND

Paris, Sept. 24.—Eighteen ships assigned by Germany to transport oil from the United States for which Germany had contracted have been ordered by the Supreme Economic Conference to proceed to England for division among the Allies.

Under Secretary of State Frank L. Polk of the American peace delegation has lodged a protest against this action, but there is little hope that he will be successful. The United States is not represented on the Supreme Economic Conference.

STRANGE MEN CAUSE FEAR IN WEST WARREN

West Warren, Sept. 24.—Strange men have been lurking around the streets late at night and small larceny complaints, it is believed, point to them. Chairs and American flags have been stolen, but it is thought much larger booty is sought and the police will keep a strict watch for the next few days.

One-Cent Transfers May Be Tried Out by Elevated

A charge of a cent a transfer may be the next move of the Boston Elevated in its quest for additional revenue. [illegible] was [illegible] when [illegible] was made [illegible] fare [illegible] charge is regarded [illegible] most [illegible] transportation men as [illegible] as the 10 cent fare [illegible] in effect [illegible] most [illegible] riding [illegible] stand.

Latest reports from the trustees show that receipts are not so far short of the cost of operation as formerly, but there is still a large deficit. It is reported that the experiment of the "short ride" has not been successful. This plan is being tested [illegible] one line from Franklin street to the North Station.

How business men can economize in clothes

YOU can get good clothes in two ways; by going to a good tailor and paying $100, $125, $150; or by getting good ready-made clothes—$50, $60, $70.

But why pay a big price when you can get what you want in our clothes; fine all-wool fabrics, the best tailoring, styles created by master designers, correct fit.

It's all right to spend your money in your own way; it's your money. But $50, $60, $70 is worth saving, if you get the result.

A New Form of Soap for the Family Washing

Not a cake soap
Not a "washing powder"
But a wonderful new Soap Product in fine granules

A NEW soap product! Absolutely different from anything you ever used before!

There is no solid soap, to rub into the cloth, and injure the fibre.

There are no harsh cleansing agents, to "eat" your clothes and destroy the colors.

But a wonderful new form of soap—in fine granules.

These pure granules are so rich in cleansing value that they loosen all the dirt, without any hard rubbing.

They are so mild your tubful of clothes is as safe with them as in pure water alone.

Rinso is made of ingredients of finer quality than were ever used in a family laundry soap before!

9 P.M.

9 A.M.

Soak the clothes overnight and RINSE—that's all

An entirely new way of washing

Rinso brings a new way of washing.

The pure, cleansing granules dissolve instantly and stir up into a tubful of rich suds.

You leave the clothes in the Rinso suds overnight, or for three hours in the morning.

Then you rinse them.

And they are clean — ready to hang on the line! Rinso has done all the work. It has loosened all the dirt so it easily rinses out. Even in the most soiled spots, cuff edges, etc., Rinso has softened the dirt, so that a light rubbing between your hands makes it drop out into the cleansing lather.

Clean and white without boiling or rubbing

You cannot believe how wonderful Rinso is until you have tried it.

Week after week your clothes will be clean and beautifully white, without boiling or rubbing.

Week after week they will stay new, and fresh in color, because they are never boiled or rubbed.

You need never boil your clothes, except occasionally, if you want to sterilize. You need never rub, except some very soiled spots lightly between your hands.

And Rinso cleans as perfectly in cold water as in warm!

Begin using Rinso this next Monday

Use Rinso this very next Monday.

Soak your clothes overnight, rinse them, and have them out in the sunshine by nine o'clock.

Never again will you wash the old, exhausting way. Never again will you wear out your clothes on a washboard.

Get Rinso from your grocer and follow the easy directions on the package. One package of Rinso will do your whole week's washing —better, and infinitely more easily, than you've ever done it before. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass. (Makers of Lux).

Clean and sweet smelling —without the old-fashioned work!

Copyrighted, 1919, by Lever Bros. Co.

Rinso

As wonderful for plain laundering as Lux is for fine fabrics

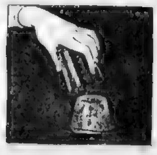
Rinso is not a "Washing Powder"

The fine granules of Rinso look much like a "washing powder", but make this test. Use a heaping teaspoonful to a glass of boiling water.

WASHING POWDER
—high in harsh chemicals
—low in soap



RINSO—
—absolutely harmless
—so rich in soap it "jells!"

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Chicago and Cincinnati each presents its pre[illegible] slugger [illegible] the left field position, and the comparison of the two occupants of that job shows them so close together that the figures will afford no satisfaction to eit[illegible]r team

Jackson, Chicago's great hitter, leads in the offence, while Roush shows a slight superiority in defensive work. In neither case is the difference of ability enough to count, so that the figures really show the men a t[illegible]

Each player has had a gr[illegible] year. Jackson, coming back after one of the most tr[illegible] experiences ever faced by a player, has fought hard harder than he ever has done before in his life and has played the best ball, really, of his career. He has played better ball than many students of the game ever expected him to play. Perhaps the criticism and abuse [illegible] the year [illegible] greater effort [illegible] battled successfully to regain public esteem

Jackson, however, has reached the point in his career where further development is impossible. Roush has just come into his prime and has not yet passed the developing period. He has youth and speed with him and the strength and the spirits of youth

In defensive work Roush has the advantage in being able to go a greater distance back after fly balls, play a slightly deeper field in safety, both in covering and forward field and in throwing. He has the edge on both [illegible] the throw. In one respect, however, the Red is slightly handicapped. Kopf cannot go out as far after fly balls as Risberg can and, therefore, Roush must cover more of the short left field than Jackson needs to reach for fly [illegible] equalize the [illegible] worth of the men and [illegible] after fly balls.

In the att[illegible] Jackson leads [illegible] spect. That is [illegible] as well in pinches as his rival does. An examination of the statistics will show that Roush has been regularly more effective in spots where only base hits would bring results. Jackson has shown better in this respect during the present season than he ever has done before. He has refuted the charge of the Cleveland critics that he could not hit with runn[illegible] on the bases, a charge which seemed to hold good during his [illegible] seasons [illegible]

Jacks[illegible] greatest [illegible] hitters the game ever has known and this season he has evidently felt the spur of criticism and has aroused a new determination.

BOTH DISTANCE HITTERS

In long d[illegible] Jackson [illegible] the more d[illegible] the average season [illegible] clear off the [illegible] the coming [illegible] because of the pitching they must face. The club aiming to beat the White Sox has as its first objective to stop Jackson and Collins. Naturally a club with a strong left-hander using a fast curve or a fast ball with a hop on it will be chosen. The fact that both Eller and Reuther figure to slow up Jackson's hitting detracts from his offensive va[illegible] team that wants to stop Cin[illegible] stop Roush. And [illegible] Williams fig[illegible] Therefore [illegible] as va[illegible] in the reg[illegible] ways that [illegible] great [illegible] the a[illegible] while [illegible] through [illegible]

Neither [illegible] a darn as a base-running factor. The advantage, such as it is, lies with the Cincinnatian. On taking two bases on a single Roush shows more ability, but Jackson can negotiate the two bags in fair time.

It may be that I am wrong but I have reduced Roush's attacking value somewhat for a queer reason. That is that he once was with the White Sox team. Kid Gleason is the discoverer of Roush. He watched him in the bush leagues and bought him for Chicago. He was the man who coached Roush and who argued that Roush ought to be retained when he was sent back to the minors for further seasoning. Therefore, Gleason knows about as much about Roush's hitting strengths and weaknesses as Roush knows. Cicotte knows quite as much, and Cicotte has remarkable co[illegible] Roush must play [illegible] knows all about [illegible] a lot about the W[illegible] and about Cicotte, but in a [illegible] the wizard of the [illegible] Roush nor a[illegible] has a great chan[illegible]

SHOULD HIT WILLIAMS.

Roush figures to hit Williams—there is no disputing that point. I think Loudermilk really would trouble him greatly—more, in fact, than Williams will. I have odd theories regarding a World Series anyhow, and often think that the manager who had nerve enough to open a series with his second string pitchers would have the [illegible] and nervousness.

[illegible] figure to hit much [illegible] will tap Eller [illegible] is more cal[illegible] ges of a batter [illegible] the left fielder [illegible] purposes [illegible] this series. The next step is to compare the centre gardeners.

Tomorrow the centre fielders will be compared.

WHITE SOX NOW IN THE BEST OF SHAPE

[illegible] the dope on the White Sox in March [illegible] Cleveland, Boston and the White Sox [illegible] so close together that [illegible] the [illegible] way to decide between them.

The Red Sox blew up and left the field to the other two—but Detroit [illegible] up the scenery and Cleveland [illegible] lost its easy games and dropped back.

The White Sox are not a strong [illegible] work, but they are a fighting club—at least this season. The team is not as good as it was two years ago, not as good as it was a year ago last April

Last year it made a wretched showing and its reversal of form and of fighting spirit this season from last raises a question of morals.

In horse racing, a sport which the baseball people are so fond of calling "crooked," if a horse or a rider fails to try to win the judges punish someone.

The White Sox failed last season chiefly because they did not try hard. That is not my accusation but the words of the owner of the club who declared that the team did not do as well by far as it should have done even after many of its stars quit for "essential" non-military work.

This year the team is winning [illegible] by trying all the time and hustling to the limit. In the last ten victories it has pulled four out of the fire by sheer desperate effort.

The question arises as to what should be done to a team or to a player in case of failure to try to win? What can a club owner do if some of his players refuse to give their best efforts to a manager?

TAD'S TIDBITS

THE GREATEST FIGHTER HE EVER SAW

When I was a kid I thought it was ridiculous for old timers to talk about old timers," said Jim Corbett, Saturday, just before he left for Los Angeles.

"It's the same today with the new fight fans. You know I saw most all of the greatest fighters come and go. I was looking at fights when Kilrain, Johnny Hergert, Tommy Warren, Griffo, Jack Dempsey, Mike Donovan, Sullivan, Dawson, Bill Edwards, Needham, Tommy Ryan and hundreds of others were in their top form

"I want to tell you that AMATEURS TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO DID THINGS THAT PROFESSIONALS OF TODAY CAN'T DO. There were two amateur lightweights at that time in San Francisco—Tommy McCord and Frank Cooley—who were the best I ever watched. They never turned professional. They had footwork and feinting down to a science. It would be a treat to see them meet some of the lightweights of today. They'd show them up

"Let's go right up to the heavies of today and the old timers. Fans want to know if Champion Jack Dempsey could have beaten John L. Sullivan. I say that there's no way to tell. Dempsey is a wonderful fellow. He's the hardest hitter I think I ever saw, but he hasn't fought enough to give us a good line on him. I mean that he hasn't met enough tough fellows who would go along with him. He may lack something. He may get leg weary or blow his punching powers. Then again he might prove to be the greatest heavyweight fighter that ever lived. We'll have to wait and see.

"Sullivan in his day was a big, hard man. He was as tough as they came. He could take them on the chin or in the body and just hunger for more, and he could hit, too. He hit like Dempsey. Why he'd bust a fellow on the back of the head and knock him out. He toured the country when he was full of booze and licked every one he met inside of four rounds. Get that?

Great Old-Time Lightweights

"There were lightweights in the olden days who were terrors, too.

"Jack McAuliffe, for instance, was a wonderful man. Kid Lavigne was a powerful little fellow with a world of stamina, and then again there was Gans. You know, GANS USED TO COME AROUND TO MY TRAINING QUARTERS AND BEG FOR BOXING LESSONS. He was probably the greatest admirer that I ever had and that's saying quite a good deal.

"Do I mean that they could have beaten Leonard? No, I don't say that. Leonard to me is a great fighter. I don't know whether he could take it like Lavigne, but he doesn't have to. If they can't hit him, why should he prove to the mob that he can stop them with his chin and then get up? I don't get that stuff at all.

"Another old timer, a ring marvel, was Tommy Ryan. Oh, I don't think there's a man of his weight in the ring today who would have stood a chance with him. He knew the game inside and out. Couldn't he hit? Ryan could feint and knew why he did it. Feinting is a lost art nowadays

"But my greatest? I have to say Peter Jackson. Mind you, I don't say that he towered over the other fellows I've just mentioned, but I think as a ringster he was the star. I saw him box an exhibition with Fitzsimmons at the old California Athletic Club, and it was like a professor giving his pupil a lesson. HE JUST MADE FITZSIMMONS LOOK LIKE A SUCKER. No wonder Fitzsimmons challenged the world, bar Jackson. He knew what he was about. I saw Jackson spar four rounds with Choynski, too, and it was the same. Joe couldn't touch him with a basket full of clothespins

"You know, Jackson stood six feet one and one-half inches tall, and weighed 205 pounds, stripped. Think of that. And then, think again of his speed, his footwork, his feinting, and his punch. He had everything. What more could a man want? He knocked out Frank Slavin, the greatest slugger of his time. Just outslugged him. Clever fellows were the same with him. He'd outbox them. He was a student

"I saw Jackson box and fought him myself, so I ought to have a pretty fair idea of what the fellow could do, shouldn't I? You know, we fought for over four hours at the California club, and they called it no contest

"I'LL NEVER FORGET THAT NIGHT AS LONG AS I LIVE.

Jackson Could Slug and Box Equally Well

"Early in the fight I started boxing with him, and he went right along. I thought he'd tire after a while. We went for fifteen rounds or so, and it seemed to me that he was tiring, so I started to slug for all I was worth. After a few rounds Billy Delaney said to me, 'this fellow's a better slugger than he's a boxer, Jim. You'd better take it easy. He has weight, height and reach on you, and you won't go long at that gait.'

"I began to think so myself and went back to boxing and footwork, where I was much safer. I've fought a lot of fellows since, but NEVER IN MY LIFE WAS I SO BEWILDERED AS THAT NIGHT. The fights that I lost after that were one-punch things. I was winning up to the time I got the punch and was never worried, but with Jackson I had to use everything I had to get by, and I worked hard. I never saw a man who could follow you, no matter how you elected to fight. Box or slug he didn't care

"I was tired after that fight. I wasn't tired for a day or two—I WAS TIRED FOR SIX MONTHS AFTER IT.

"Yes, he could beat any heavy that I ever saw

"Jeffries? A wonderful fellow. You know—a wonderful fellow for a man without the fighting spirit. Jeff, naturally left-handed and with tremendous power behind it, was tough; but I can look back and see that Jackson with everything a fighter needs, and I can't help saying he was my ideal fighting man."

TECH SWIMMING TEAM IS GIVEN BIG BOOST

Technology's prospects for a banner year in swimming received a big boost by the application for entrance of Gordon Smith, former Worcester Academy star, and holder of New England titles in the 100 and 220. It was thought that he would enter Yale this Fall, but evidently he likes the idea of being near home.

"Guernsey" Hubbard, former Lawrenceville swimmer, is another of the entering class who will do much to fill the vacancies left by the loss of Max Untersee and Charles Scranton, captain-elect, who has decided to enter Penn medical.

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Jesse Guilford, the Woodland golfer, led at the end of the first day's play in the open tournament at the Yahnundasis Golf Club. Guilford made the 18-hole course in 75 and 72. Bob McDonald and Jim Barnes tied for second place with 149.

PRINCETON GRID SQUAD WORKS OUT IN DRIZZLE

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 24.—The varsity football squad worked out in a drizzle under the eye of Head Coach Bill Roper. DUNDEE EARNS REFEREE'S VERDICT IN 12 ROUNDS

By JACK CONWAY.

Johnny Dundee fought [illegible] battle at the Armory A. A. show [illegible] Charley Parker of the South End in a twelve [illegible]. Larry Conley was the third man in the ring. [illegible] ovation he received when he entered the ring, New England fans [illegible] enough of outside officials.

Dundee's speed and cleverness enabled him to pile up a comfortable margin of points. [illegible] opened up on numerous occasions and scored with heavy blows to the head and body.

[illegible] landed several punches that staggered the dapper New Yorker.

Dundee hopped out into the lead in the opening session. He relied chiefly upon his dazzling left to get the margin on the local boy.

The [illegible] also ended in Dundee's favor. In the last ten seconds of this frame the New Yorker [illegible] after Parker had scored with a left [illegible] the fans [illegible].

Parker [illegible] rush in the [illegible] his own with Dundee [illegible] fight [illegible] rival [illegible] some hard [illegible].

Parker did his best work of the bout in the fourth round when he grabbed the honors. In this frame, Dundee tried his famous rope trick several times. Twice Parker failed to follow the New Yorker to close quarters. Dundee apparently figured he could bounce off the ropes whenever he desired, but when he tried this stunt for the third time Parker [illegible] and scored with a right hand punch to the jaw as Johnny came off the ropes. It was the first time Boston fans have seen the New Yorker beaten at his favorite style of campaign.

Parker followed up his advantage by rushing to close quarters. As he came in he scored with a left hook which staggered Dundee and sent him reeling against the ropes. The South End lad was fighting at a lively clip when the bell sounded for the end of the round.

Dundee came back into his own in the fifth. During a merry exchange of punches, Parker slipped, but was on his feet like a flash, fighting well.

In the sixth Dundee opened a gash under Parker's right eye. It was Dundee's round.

The seventh chapter saw Dundee at his best. He rallied Parker with smashing blows to the head and body. Charley was in poor shape when the session ended.

From that point on Dundee had the bout well in hand. He outpointed Parker at every point. At times Charley flashed and fought back courageously, but he did not have a chance to win. He should be given credit, however, for putting up a game fight against a master ringman.

Harry Kiel's, who refereed the preliminaries, pulled a bloomer in the semi-final when he gave Willie Green of South Boston the decision over Frank Tillo, who hails from the North End, in an eight-round contest. Tillo was the aggressor in every round, [illegible] Green and had his opponent wobbling in the final chapter. Tillo should have received the verdict.

Young [illegible] of South Boston lost to Arthur Ross, [illegible] the South End boxer, in five rounds. A towel tossed from Martin's corner ended the mill.

George Crouse of Philadelphia won from Young Briggy, who inflicts himself on St. Paul, in a round. Briggy decided he had enough of boxing at the end of the first session and [illegible] to the dressing room [illegible] by a [illegible] crowd which was well handled by a detachment of State Guardsmen working under the direction of Captain Goode.

BOXING NOTES

Johnny Russell of New York and Max Williamson of Philadelphia will clash in the feature bout of twelve rounds at Marlboro tonight. Russell [illegible] at Marlboro against Young [illegible] of New [illegible] and bantamweight champion, and made a hit with the fans by his snappy style of milling.

Williamson has been an active campaigner in Philadelphia and New York rings. He has clashed with such men as Bobby Doyle, Patsy Wallace, Jabez White, Dutch Brandt, Eddie Coulon and Kid Williams. He believes he carries too many guns for Russell. The winner of this match may receive a chance to meet Dyson.

At Framingham tonight Walter Porter of Revere will clash with Young Goula, Woonsocket welterweight, in a twelve-round contest. As both men are willing workers, the fans should witness plenty of action.

Paul Doyle of this city will show at Providence this evening against Joe Welsh of Philadelphia in a twelve-round mixup. Doyle has won his last two starts, defeating Young Goula and Chick West. Tony Palozolo says his protege is prepared to meet Young Kloby if the Y. D. is sincere in his statement that he does not intend to meet any more New York boxers.

Jim McDonald, manager of Dave Powers, today issued the following statement:

"Dave Powers will meet Kloby any time at 142 pounds. And he [illegible] not to foul him. Furthermore, Dave will give Kloby the toughest fight the Lawrence man has had since he returned from France. If Powers can land a match with Kloby he'll train for ten days, which is more than he has ever done for any other contest."

Danny Morgan says he'll bet $5,000 (soft pedal please) that Fitz [illegible] can beat any fighter in New England. Danny must have run off [illegible] of stage money when he was building the Fitz-Kloby tussle.

Have yet to read anything about Morgan being in tears making any of his statements. The only thing which would cause this bird to start his sprinklers operating would be some sort of an injunction which would prevent him from collecting his end after one of his worthies had performed.

Jackie Williams stated today that Paddy Owens did not quit to Young Dyson at New Bedford. Instead the Cambridge boy went down fighting in the seventh frame. Williams gives Dyson credit for being one of the hardest hitting little fellows in the East. Owens, although a clever boxer, was not able to weather the series of stiff body blows his opponent let drive.

IN the old days the shimmy was still known as malaria, man was weak and drink was raging. Now [illegible] raging. In those days there was a big stone [illegible] Wall Street to keep Injun commuters out. They ought to put [illegible] back again to keep the bond messengers in.

S[illegible] flapper. This is a record for the track. Another bird faded away with enough thousand-dollar bonds to paper a room. After having lived straight all his life, one seven year-old kid did a Houdini with fifty thousand dollars' worth of chorus plasters. Trusting a messenger boy with Liberty Bonds is just like sending a cabbage leaf by a rabbit.

KIDS nowadays collect Liberty Bonds like the old time kids used to hoard cigarette cards. Where we played marbles with trollers, moonies and agates, they now play with square marbles with spots on 'em.

THERE used to be some reason for saving cigarette cards with pictures of Lillian Russell, Pauline Hall or some member of the Black Crook company on 'em. They were worth their weight in scrap iron. You could always trade Fanny Ward [illegible] partly chewed licorice wood. Della Fox was quoted at [illegible] and was good for a minnow that would live [illegible] water with reasonable care. Which is the only place where the [illegible] of Engraving has shown any judgment. The bonds would disappear much faster if they had chickens on 'em instead of eagles.

ANY kid who parted his hair in the daytime was staked to the old Dutch rub. Now, a kid's head is all part and no head. Where an old-fashioned kid would be robbing freight cars or swiping lead pipe, a nowadays kid is learning to dance. No wonder the modern boys go wrong.

WHERE an old-time lad would chase Mohawks almost as far west as Jersey City, a new-fangled kid [illegible] off the [illegible] when he hears a mouse squeaking. If a leaf falls off a tree, he runs into the house.

WHEN it came to running errands, the old timer was honest. You could trust him with a bottle of quinine, a package of hairpins or a pound of powdered camphor. But a Wall Street messenger is something else again as the old lady said when she scrubbed the canary and found that it was a sparrow.

YOU can trust a bond messenger just as [illegible] as a lead horse can run. The lads think [illegible] 'em [illegible] so [illegible] can take liberties with 'em.

BUT the judge convinces 'em that they call 'em Liberty Bonds because you get your liberty in about ten years with the usual trade discount for good behavior.

BLUE RIBBONERS IN READVILLE DOG SHOW

More than 150 dogs have been entered [illegible] try is Cairn terriers, a new breed of dogs in this country. Among the other exhibitors of this breed are Mrs. J. C. Mallery of Newport, R. I., and Mrs. Henry Stephens of Prides Crossing. R. S. Macomber of Providence, R. I., will compete with a string of Cocker Spaniels, including his famous champion "Overtoss Ione."

PRIZE COW ENTERED.

"Eileen," the aristocratic Guernsey cow for which John McCormack, the Irish tenor, paid $10,000, and hundreds of other blue-blooded bovines, have arrived at Readville Park.

Over 600 thoroughbred horses, runners, trotters and show ring performers will be stabled at Readville by evening. It will be by far the largest collection of horses that have ever been staged at this [illegible] course.

The management has perfected every detail for the reception of the big crowds expected to surge through the gates in the three days that the fair is on. An elaborate program of vaudeville, sideshows [illegible] trotting, polo and an automobile show, along with the dog, cattle and horse shows, will provide action every minute.

RECORD HORSE SHOW.

The horse show will be by far the largest of any that has been staged in Boston in a score of years. Secretary Shaw says that [illegible] of show horses [illegible] ada will compete for the ribbons.

Chester I. Campbell, who is directing the automobile show, says that thirty different makes of [illegible] and [illegible] accessory devices will be on exhibition. He promises to have many of the advance 1920 closed types of [illegible].

There will be plenty of racing. Ralph Millet has [illegible] three races [illegible] to this there will be running races on the flat. The polo matches will start each day at 4 o'clock.

American to Have Great Team of Experts at World's Series

THEY say you can't have everything, but we are [illegible] to disprove that theory.

What do you want on your world's series men?

Good, clear descriptive stories of the games? Analytical "dope," before and after, as well as during, from 'way [illegible]?

[illegible] it? Leaves little to be desired, what?

KID GLEASON.

Well, then, in order that each reader of the Boston American may have just what his heart desires, we are giving you all of the above this year. Take a look at the bill:

NICK FLATLEY and DAMON RUNYON, baseball experts and descriptive writers from the American's regular staff.

HUGH S. FULLERTON, you know him. That's enough. Get the inside "dope." The world's greatest baseball statistician—and figures never lie.

KID GLEASON, manager of the Chicago White Sox, and one of the shrewdest baseball men of his time. Gleason will tell the story of the series from the Sox side of the fence, but, incidentally, we will have from him a series of articles before the games, telling why he thinks he will win, and something of the campaign of the Sox this season.

PAT MORAN.

PAT MORAN, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, and the new "Miracle Man" of the game; the "cast-off," who took a bunch of "cast-offs" and won the first pennant Cincinnati has had in fifty years, as he won Philadelphia's first flag. The story of the 1919 Reds is one of the real human interest stories of baseball, and Moran will tell it to the readers of the American, besides furnishing plenty of "dope" on the world's series and writing of the games as they are fought out on the field.

The Gleason and Moran articles start tomorrow.

"Adelaide," he said abruptly, as, unannounced, he entered her living room and met her startled gaze, [illegible]

Worried Enough

"I forbid you to mention to Desiree this story that Jefferson has started. She is worried enough as it is about losing the pendant. I will not have her perturbed further until I know just how matters stand. I suppose," he added grimly, "that there is no hope of silencing Helen Goddard's tongue."

"I do not think, Samuel," Mrs. Duffield ventured tremulously, "that there is much danger of Helen's talking any more about the matter just now. She was very much worried last night over what she had said."

"She ought to be!" the man declared. "Talk is the devil himself sometimes."

When Desiree came into his library an hour later to kiss her father good-night, he was [illegible]

XIV.

NEW YORK was terror-stricken. In common with the rest of the world [illegible] had an almost idolatrous [illegible] for great [illegible]

[illegible] upon civilization? Were [illegible] institutions founded by the fathers and brought to perfection by the present generation to be superseded by a power wielded by a conscienceless zealot?

Such were the questions propounded in the newspaper editorials when Heenan devoured with his breakfast before setting out for the scene of the kidnaping of Tobey.

Of course the writers answered their own questions. No; law and the process of civilization would prevail. Let the city be brave and patient. Heenan had been placed in command by the Mayor. He had promised that in forty-eight hours he would have the murderer or murderers by the heels.

Let New York not yield to alarm. [illegible] The deadly society would be destroyed shortly. Nevertheless, the exact opinion of the press was perhaps most [illegible] editorial [illegible] that there was [illegible] his [illegible]

Then he had lost his license and become one of the people who manage to exist without work. The Alderman had given him sums of money from time to time. And that was all.

[illegible] Heenan [illegible] knew of every [illegible] South Africa [illegible] if only the informer had told earlier of the drunken boastings of Casey Red. But Heenan was not one to mourn over spilled milk. He put the mystery of Casey Red out of mind temporarily as he entered the home of Tobey, the kidnaped broker of Wall street.

Tobey, for all his wealth, for all his [illegible] about the gayer resorts of the night-loving city, lived in almost Spartan-like simplicity in his own bachelor quarters. Probably his very simplicity enabled him to retain strength and vigor for the campaigns of finance and of dissipation into which he plunged elsewhere. But he reveled in this old-fashioned apartment house, where a good third of his floor space was devoted to a gymnasium.

He kept but one servant, who valeted him and prepared his breakfast. His other meals he ate in the glaring restaurants. The servant was a negro. Frightened half to death, he told what little he knew.

His master had come home at [illegible] He had indulged in the gymnastic work usual with him when he had not been dining or drinking heavily and was home early. Then he went to bed, leaving word with the servant, Gabe, to call him at seven. Gabe had knocked on his master's door at seven, and [illegible] had not been answered. He [illegible] at once became aware of the sickly odor [illegible] heavily in the atmosphere of the bedroom. His master was gone, and so was the [illegible] which he had worn the previous night. And there was a note which Gabe did not understand, but which two men outside the apartment—Heenan's men—had understood when, in answer to his cry of alarm, they had entered the apartment, which by the way, was on the ground floor. The note had been replaced where Gabe had found it on the dresser. Heenan read it.

Why Do French Women Always Look Young?

In France mothers and daughters look like sisters. How are the women there able to retain their youthful looks until long past middle age? Is it because they are much given to the use of mercolized wax? This wax possesses a remarkable absorbent property which quickly removes the fine particles of cuticle which are constantly dying and which are the underlying cause of an old looking complexion. Thus the lovelier, healthier younger skin beneath is kept in a [illegible] [illegible] it off. Mercolized wax [illegible] to make your complexion as clear, soft and beautiful as a young girl's. Just one ounce of mercolized wax (all American druggists have it) usually does the work. The wax is put on nights like cold cream and washed off mornings.—Advertisement.

A TRUE LETTER

East Boston, Mass. The following letter may bring advice to other sufferers. Dr. J. F. True & Co., Having heard that your medicine, Dr. True's Elixir, had been on the market for years and years, I thought perhaps my ailments would be helped if I tried it. I have spent many dollars in trying to get a Laxative which would agree with me, be pleasant to take and yet effective. At last I have it—Dr. True's Elixir, The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller.

For years I have had a poor appetite—any rich foods disagreed with me, and my headaches were frightful. I was troubled with tired feelings, nervous depression, weakness, spots before my eyes, bad breath, sleeplessness, irritability, dizziness and many other signs of sickness.

I can now do a day's housework and not mind it and your Dr. True's Elixir is always handy. I don't know of a better laxative—I give it to my children with wonderful results—it relieves them of worms.

MRS. HELEN WOODFORD,
3 Lamson St., E. Boston.

The prescription, DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR, The Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, has done wonders for sick people: men, women and children. AT ALL DEALERS.

Stocks Strong in Both Markets; Trading Active in New York; Steels Are Higher

BEGAN HIGHER AND STAYED STRONG

But Morning Gains in Boston Market Averaged Small

The Boston market was firm at the opening and was strong all the morning. Gains were not large, but they were general. Among strong issues were Carson Hill, Root and Van Dervoort, Gray & Davis, American Telephone, United Fruit, Ventura and Pond Creek. They were all fractionally higher. Carson Hill sold at a new record high, and Pond Creek at its 1919 highest. Most of the trading was in shares of corporations making automobile accessories. Mullins Body was the only weak stock in this class. It was fractionally lower all the forenoon.

Among issues to decline were United Fruit, Davis Daly, Swift International, Libby and Massachusetts Gas.

On one sale Fairbanks and Osceola each advanced two points. Bery little business was done in coppers. Trading during the morning was of about the usual volume.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Boston Curb Exchange will remove to new quarters at 27 Exchange street early in October. It has outgrown present accommodations.

Present production by Ventura Consolidated Oil Fields approximates 3,300 barrels of crude oil daily, which is 1,000 barrels increase when compared with the last year output. Production averaged 1,922 in 1917.

More than 90 per cent. of the fifty cents assessment on the 200,000 Boston Ely Mining shares has been paid and the company is now sending final notices to delinquents. Stock may be deposited and assessments paid at the Old Colony Trust Company up to October 1. Any shares not having paid the assessment by that date shall be declared delinquent and will be received only at the discretion of the directors of the company, with interest at 6 per cent. from August 15.

Am. Telephone Financing

Some American Telephone financing is expected by many stock market operators but an official pronounces as "absurd" the rumor that a preferred stock issue will be authorized soon. "We have never considered," he says, "nor will we consider such a form of financing."

PRICE ADVANCE COVERS THE LIST

Motors Make Gains, Oils Up and Tobacco Issues Are Irregular

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, prices being at about the highest since the opening. Steels figured in the advance, while motors, oils, sugars, equipments and rails were showing gains. Tobacco and shipping issues were irregular. The market was active, first hour transactions totaling nearly 350,000 shares. Steels made the best showing of any class in the second hour.

At 12 o'clock U. S. Steel was up 1⅝ at 103⅝, and Bethlehem B was up ⅝ at 1½ at 98½. Crucible was up 4½ at 187¼, Lackawanna Steel 2⅝ at 85⅝, and Republic Steel ⅝ at 91. Midvale was unchanged at 50¼.

Fisher Body advanced almost ten points on a few sales. Other large gains were made by General Motors, Kelly Springfield, Keystone, Mexican Petroleum and Sumatra. They had advanced from two to morethan five points.

American Tobacco was off three points. Most declines were small.

Call money was first quoted at 6 per cent.

HIGHER AT THE OPENING.

Prices were higher at the opening in the case of most stocks and the market had a strong tone. Gains were small on the average and of significance mainly in indicating that sentiment in trading circles is bullish. In view of the extent of the steel strike and its possible effect upon the industries of the country a firm stock market is regarded as indicating belief in financial circles that manufacturers will win. A leading financial publication said this morning: "According to those bankers who have sized up the labor crisis correctly, events of the past forty-eight hours affirm their predictions of victory for capital in the great steel strike." U. S. Steel began a trifle higher and Crucible advanced two points at the outset. It soon increased its gain. But the movement of this issue can hardly be regarded as reflecting general conditions. It is governed rather by speculative technicalities. Bethlehem B and Republic Steel both began with small losses. They soon recovered and showed gains, however.

PRICES REACH HIGHER LEVEL.

The market improved quickly, and by the end of half an hour it was decidedly strong. Steels were prominent in the upturn. With the exception of Crucible, Lackawanna Steel advanced the most in this group. At one time during the first hour it was up two and one-half points. Strongest issues in early trading included Car & Foundry, American Locomotive, Baldwin, Anaconda, California Petroleum, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Co., Pan American, Sinclair, N. Y. Royal Dutch, General Electric, General Motors, Kelly Springfield, Keystone Tire, Fisher Body, Reading and Chesapeake & Ohio. They were showing from one to four points gain during the first thirty minutes. There was profit taking and a shading of prices later. At the end of an hour the market was still strong.

Tanners Curtail Production

It is said in New York that some tanners are curtailing production, reducing their output 50 per cent. in some instances. They are afraid of the market becoming overstocked because domestic buying has diminished and foreign exports decreased. Dealers are said to have accumulated large stocks of sole and upper leather, but are resisting price reductions. It is not long since that the public was warned of a leather famine and the alternative of paying enormous prices for shoes or going barefoot.

The School Teachers' and Clergymen's Wages

The American does not agree with Mayor Peters' declaration that the city cannot afford to pay the Boston public school teachers more wages.

He does not deny that the teachers are underpaid, and when it is admitted that the teachers are underpaid, the question of whether or not the city can afford to raise their wages is answered decisively. There is no American community that cannot afford to pay just wages to those who are charged with the duty of teaching and disciplining our children and preparing them for citizenship. The children are under the care and control of the teachers a great deal more during their conscious hours than they are under the control of their parents. The teacher's occupation is the most fundamental occupation of all the tens of thousands of occupations in our complex civilization.

The pride and distinction of America and her greatest contribution to the world was her public school system. The importance that she gave to universal public school training as a preparation for intelligent citizenship, without which, of course, we cannot be a successful democracy, the social distinction which she gave her teachers attracted to the schools the finest body of teachers in the world. Through the school teachers' corps have cleared the most distinguished public men America has produced. Indeed, there are few public men who rose between the establishment of the republic and a generation ago who had not been a school teacher.

We must maintain the character of our school teachers at any cost. There ought not to be any question about the ability of the most prosperous nation in the world to pay its schoool teachers a living wage, and a wage somewhat commensurate with the responsibility of their task.

We must not repeat the mistake which was made with respect to the police. If we do not want the school teachers to organize for their self-protection we must not make it plain to them that they cannot have a redress of grievances without organization. We cannot insist upon their remaining helpless and then take advantage of their helplessness. If one-half of the money which landlords are taking through unjust profiteering and rent raising was ex-appropriated for the benefit of the school teachers and of the police and of all other city employes whose wages have not risen with the cost of living, we should have no difficulty in paying adequate wages. Let the Mayor remember this when the real estate trusteees and agents howl at his tax rate.

While we are on the subject, we call attention of the public to Senator Walsh's article in the Boston Sunday Advertiser of a week ago on wages of the unorganized clerical class. They have undoubtedly suffered more than any other class in the community on account of the high cost of living.

Clergymen especially are scandalously underpaid. When you stand on a highway on a Saturday or Sunday in this State and see the automobiles go by in an endless procession—as compact as a procession itself—so close that it is dangerous to cross the street from seven in the morning till after sundown, and then consider the wages which are paid to our clergymen and think that the Mayor of our largest and most prosperous city—a perfectly honest man—thinks that we cannot pay our school teachers what they ought to be paid, we must then begin to wonder "what is rotten in Denmark."

Big Money for the Fighters

Wisconsin Sets a Fine Example to Congress

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

If you lived in Wisconsin you would have had an opportunity recently to vote on the referendum bill authorizing the payment to every discharged fighter from that State of ten dollars a month for every month's service with a minimum of $50.

The popularity of the measure is evidenced by the fact that it passed by a big margin, the vote in some sections being ten to one in its favor.

Of course this was only a State measure. But it indicates what the attitude of the people is toward the boys who fought abroad or made ready to fight in camps at home.

It is of the same tenor and argument as the great petition of more than six million Americans which was recently presented to Congress through the medium of the Hearst newspapers asking six months' pay for every soldier, sailor and marine honorably discharged from service.

The people of this country are ten to one for the universal recognition of the men who fought.

They are ten to one for liberal and prompt expression of the gratitude of the nation for the services those boys rendered across the seas as well as in home camps.

They do not understand why there should be any more delay about authorizing this merited reward than there was about calling the boys from their homes and their jobs when the war began.

If the nation is going to assess its gratitude at anything higher than the meagre $60, which has so far been granted, it certainly will not add to the valuation to constantly postpone it.

Let's give the boys the six months' pay that rightfully belongs to them, and let's do it NOW.

BALANCE THE SECRET OF CO-OPERATION

There can be no very strong ties of deep satisfaction in a friendship or partnership of any kind where the parties are unequally matched in the essentials.

Sympathy grows out of a similar experience.

No one can understand in any true sense a thing which has never been a part of his experience.

There is no sympathy without understanding, because understanding is sympathy.

You pile up a lot of boards of unequal length and width.

Take up a great deal more room than if you had put those of a size together or, say, balanced up the long with the short.

There must be balance, one way or the other.

Choose your friends to make up what you lack, and then, having found the one you think will do, don't seek to unbalance the balance.

Unrest and indecision and dissatisfaction never get anywhere.

Correlation is the secret.

More Truth Than Poetry

RESIGNED AMBITIONS

By S. E. KISER

My first ambition was to be,
The world's most famous bareback rider;
We owned an old mare then, and she
Was two feet wide on top, or wider;
Barefooted, on her ample back,
I used to practice, animated
By hopes that were all vain, alack,
And long ago were dissipated!
The circus still may have its lure
For ardent youngsters, rough and ready;
I want my footing to be sure,
My terminal arrangement steady.

With adolescence came the proud
Ambition and the dear desire
To strut before the breathless crowd,
A man to envy and admire;
I longed to hear the sweet applause
That makes the actor's heart throb gladly,
To play the hero's part and cause
Enchanted girls to love me madly;
But that dear dream was ended, too,
And, since my locks are growing thinner,
I even shun the "ongenoo"
Who'd like to let me buy her dinner.

There was a time when secretly,
If I must make a full confession,
I hoped that some day I might be
The hero in the grand procession;
I used to dream of blaring bands,
And flags and bunting waving proudly,
Of people massed in many stands,
Observing me and cheering loudly;
But now I must be satisfied
If, when the famous person passes,
No hoodlum pushes me aside
Or thoughtlessly knocks off my glasses.

PASS THE PRIZE TO HER.

The most spiteful of all women is the one who is good merely to disappoint others who would like to be able to say unlovely things about her.

THEY ARE ALWAYS WITH US.

Ex-King Nicholas of Montenegro refuses to accept a pension of $200,000 a year from Serbia, and says he "wants nothing but his throne returned." Some people are so fond of trouble that they get mad whenever anybody tries to coax them out of it.

DOWN ON a roof.
* * *
THAT I can see.
* * *
FROM MY window.
* * *
A MAN came up.
* * *
THROUGH THE door in the roof.
* * *
WITH A basket of clothes.
* * *
AND SAT it down.
* * *
AND PICKED up something.
* * *
THAT LOOKED like a ball.
* * *
AND AS he shook.
* * *
IT SHAPED itself.
* * *
TO A suit of rompers.
* * *
THAT COULDN'T have been.
* * *
MORE THAN large enough.
* * *
FOR A one-year old.
* * *
AND HE hung it up.
* * *
ON THE roof clothes line.
* * *
AND REACHED down again.
* * *
FOR ANOTHER ball.
* * *
AND SHOOK it out.
* * *
AND JUST the same size.
* * *
AND HE reached for a third.
* * *
AND SHOOK it out.
* * *
AND HUNG it up.
* * *
AND IT was a suit.
* * *
OF A larger size.
* * *
AND ALTOGETHER.
* * *
HE TOOK out six.
* * *
AND THEY came in pairs.
* * *
FROM THE one-year-old.
* * *
TO WHAT I would guess.
* * *
WAS A three-year-old.
* * *
AND THEN he reached down.
* * *
FOR A bigger ball.
* * *
IT WAS a man's shirt.
* * *
AND HE smoothed it down.
* * *
AND HUNG it up.
* * *
WITH THREE clothes pins.
* * *
AND SMOOTHED it some more.
* * *
AND TOOK out a pin.
* * *
AND TOOK out a wrinkle.
* * *
AND PUT the pin back.
* * *
AND THEN reached down.
* * *
FOR ANOTHER ball.
* * *
AND SHOOK it out.
* * *
AND WHATEVER it was.
* * *
IT WAS just plain white.
* * *
AND HE hung them up.
* * *
AND TOOK his basket.
* * *
AND WENT away.
* * *
AND I failed to say.
* * *
THAT HE wore blue pants.
* * *
AND WAS in his shirt sleeves.
* * *
AND, ANYWAY.
* * *
JUST AN hour ago.
* * *
HE CAME back again.
* * *
WITH THE very same basket.
* * *
AND ALL dressed up.
* * *
IN POLICEMAN'S clothes.
* * *
AND HE cleared the lines.
* * *
AND WENT down again.
* * *
AND THAT'S the story.
* * *
AND IT'S all there is to it.

I THANK you.

MIND STATE THAT HAS NO SCIENTIFIC BASIS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"How do you account for the fact that some people have a presentiment before trouble or death comes? I happen to be gifted this way, if we may call it a gift. I have never known it to fail. I always have a presentiment before death or trouble comes, without anything else occurring to make me suspect it. I can't tell just what is going to happen, but I can always tell that something is going to happen. What is your opinion?—P. F. G."

My opinion is that if you reason on the scoop-shovel plan, like a "weather prophet," you can always find something somewhere that will serve for a confirmation of any presentiment or prediction. Your statement that you cannot tell just what is going to happen, but simply feel that something or other is going wrong, proves that the presentiment is not a true prescience, or foreknowledge.

You fit it to anything in the nature of "trouble" that chances to come along within an indefinite period after the vague premonition crept over your spirit. It is a state of mind and not a grasp on future events that constitutes your "gift." I should call such a condition unhealthy; not in the sense of "mental disease," but in the sense of a bad habit, or mood, of the mind.

Due to Physical Condition

A shadow falls upon your spirit, due to some physical cause operating somewhere in your body, some functional derangement of stomach, liver, or what not, and you take it for a premonition of something about to happen outside yourself, although probably within your circle of personal or family interest.

If something untoward does happen, you pitch upon it as the event that your prophetic spirit was striving to warn you of. Or else you assume—and some theorists would, perhaps, encourage such an idea—that your nature is supersensitive, keeping you informed of the slightest disturbances in the invisible and mysterious sea of life around you, so that you can detect the coming wave by indications too delicate to affect the nervous systems of ordinary persons.

This idea, while it has been used to explain certain cases of alleged prescience, such as that of a prevision by a clairvoyant in London of the assassination of the King and Queen of Serbia in Belgrade in 1903, has no scientific standing—i. e., it rests upon no experimentally verified basis—and I should advise you not to look to it for an explanation of your own case, but to subject yourself to a very carefully thought out series of tests, aiming at discovering how many of your presentiments are followed by really important and significant troubles, and how many by nothing that could be so called; how long a time elapses between the premonition and its supposed fulfilment; what your condition of health and your mental mood are at the time, etc.

In a word, look first for a subjective explanation, remembering that the burden of proof is, and properly should be, always on whatever contradicts practically universal experience.

Grows Into an Obsession

Belief in the possession of a power of premonition, acting independently of ordinary mental processes, grows rapidly "by what it feeds on"—viz., supposed fulfilments. Often it grows into an obsession which torments the person upon whom it has fastened. He becomes afraid of his own moods.

A real power of foreseeing the future would take all the joy out of life. And it would rob the joy, even though it showed nothing but sunshine ahead. If that is what the serpent was trying to bestow upon Eve in the Garden of Eden, we can understand the full malignity of his intention.

KING SYLVIA BEING USED ON HONEYMOON

King Sylvia is taking his honeymoon journey. And they are using him as an experiment in eugenics—rather an unusual procedure. Furthermore, King Sylvia is worth no less than $100,000 on the hoof, a good price to pay for any bridegroom. Incidentally the King is a prize bull, and the experiments which scientists are carrying out with this bovine aristocrat as a subject may be of tremendous value to cattle breeders in the future. Belgium's Scrap of Paper
To Get Rich Quickly
Imagination, Energy, Advertising
That League, Once More

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1919.)

Belgium and Holland no longer speak. Each has withdrawn its ambassador. Belgium, may it please you, demands a slice of Holland and repudiation of a treaty made by Belgium in 1839. Belgium, in return for the slice that she would take from Holland, generously offers a slice of Germany. Holland naturally asks just when Belgium decided to go into the "scrap of paper" and land-grabbing business on her own account.

Great fortunes, and many of them, are made after big wars. In his new short history of Rome, Ferrero tells how it was done after the Punic Wars, two thousand years ago. Everybody with imagination and energy got rich. The thing can be done anywhere in the world now, as easily as it was two thousand years ago, with energy and imagination plus advertising.

In his book, "A Pelican's Tale," F. M. Boyd tells how James Bailey, for P. T. Barnum, bought Jumbo, the great elephant, for fifteen thousand dollars. With Jumbo, plus advertising, P. T. Barnum took in two million seven hundred thousand dollars. Jumbo was only a few inches taller than other elephants but Jumbo's advertising was marvelously tall and intelligent. The big elephant stands stuffed in the New York Museum. Advertising agents should take prospective clients to see him.

Italy tells the Allies to take Fiume from D'Annunzio if they don't want him there. No use sending Italians, for when they get to Fiume they forget and begin cheering for the fighting poet. Everybody in Fiume is for Italian annexation. Every window displays an Italian flag. All others are torn down.

If there is anything in the "self-determination" talk allied troops should be sent to maintain D'Annunzio at Fiume, not to fight him.

In addition, the Italians, for their protection, should have a long strip along the eastern shore of the Adriatic. President Wilson says the Italian claims in that neighborhood are based on "strategic considerations." Of course they are. Putting a slice of the Rhineland under allied control was done to safeguard France. Giving German colonies, battleships and trade to England is also based on strategic considerations. If such considerations are convincing as regards France and England, why not as regards Italy, without whose help France and England would have been conquered by Germany before we entered the war?

Lloyd George says something must be done for Ireland. He has enough intelligence and conscience to realize it, and fight Toryism, as he has done before. But meanwhile the English police in Ireland are supplied with hand grenades to deal with the dissatisfied population.

When Swift, the Irish genius, was asked at a public banquet to drink to the trade of Ireland, he replied: "Sir, I drink no memories." Ireland needs a man like Swift to describe her condition and the international hypocrisy responsible for it.

Senator Reed of Missouri says the league would set up a super-State to which all concerned, including the United States, would submit and surrender individual authority. This country seems rather big and far off to go into an arrangement of that kind. Under the new League of Nations rules, this country would have no say at all in cases affecting the United States. For instance, if the United States and Canada had a dispute, other nations would settle the matter. Canada having her separate vote and England her separate vote; Canada and the United States would be voteless in such a dispute, but presumably England, Australia and three other British concerns with separate votes would vote on the case. How do you think the voting would go?

One thing you may write down in your tablets, the League of Nations will not go through with six votes for England and one vote for the United States, no matter how nicely sugar-coated the six English votes may be. England will have to be content with as many and as few votes in the new super-State as we have, even though as a consequence no American President should ever again be allowed to sleep in Buckingham Palace.
